

RUSSIA ENDS U.S. ATOM MONOPOLY

Officials Feel Danger Of War Not Increased

Soviet Explosion Launches New Era Of Policy Making

By JOHN M. HIGHTOWER
WASHINGTON, Sept. 23 (AP) — News of Russia's atomic explosion hit official Washington with terrific impact. It opened a new era of policy making in which officials can no longer assume that the United States has an atomic bomb monopoly.

Russia's development of an atomic explosive came earlier — perhaps a year earlier — than this government had expected.

One of the first reactions inside the government, it was learned, was to bring up for review and revision the official estimates of Russia's industrial capacity to produce not only atomic bombs but other important weapons.

A review of major American political and military strategy also seemed possible, although that is the kind of thing which would normally come about slowly and on the basis of more information than now apparently is available even to the best informed leaders of the western nations.

Officials Not Surprised
Authorities professed not to be particularly surprised by the fact that an atomic explosive had been manufactured by the Russians. The general scientific knowledge of how to make the necessary ingredients has been known for several years.

Washington and the rest of the nation anxiously wondered whether the danger of war is increased by today's news. The answer from the political experts is "we don't think so."

Their argument runs this way: The ability of any nation to make war does not necessarily mean that it wants war. While the Russians have used force and threats of force against their small neighbor countries, the Kremlin's hopes for world Communism are based on a belief that eventually western democracies will wreck themselves and Russia can march in over the ruins.

No Major Tension Points
Even during the critical days of the Berlin airlift, top State Department officials did not believe that the Russians would press the cold war to the point of actual fighting. Fears of war then were based primarily on the danger of a series of shooting incidents which would cause the situation to get out of hand. The world today is free of such highly magnified tension points as then existed in Berlin.

Any estimate of Russia's current military potential raises the question whether the Russians actually have one or more atomic bombs at this time. Presumably, as Secretary of State Acheson suggested in New York today, it was an "atomic weapon" which blew up. But if the Soviets followed the American pattern of atomic experiments to determine whether their first bomb would work or not the thing that blew up may have been the only one of these weapons which Russia has thus far succeeded in making.

Blast Was Probably Witnessed By Stalin

NEW YORK, Sept. 23 (AP)—The New York Daily News says Premier Stalin probably was a personal witness to the recent atomic explosion in Russia.

The Daily News, in a Rome dispatch by Robert Conway, said Stalin was determined to see the first Russian atomic blast and "there is no reason to believe" he was not present for it.

The dispatch adds that Stalin previously was a witness at two unsuccessful atomic tests near the Caspian Sea.

House Group Reports Reds Go Underground In Capital

WASHINGTON, Sept. 23 (AP)—The House Un-American Activities Committee indicated today that key Communists in Washington have gone underground and are trying to infiltrate the government.

It put that idea into a forward to a pamphlet in which it published testimony taken by the committee this summer on Communism in the District of Columbia.

The forward noted "how closely the Communist network in the District of Columbia was interlocked and interwoven." It said Communist fronts and Communist-controlled unions employ Reds on their staffs. It said Communists supply these organizations with money and "a nucleus of active membership."

USSR Calls For Peace Pact

Lowell Thomas Is Seriously Injured In Tibet Accident

NEW YORK, Sept. 23 (AP)—Lowell Thomas (above) has been thrown from a horse and seriously injured in the wild mountains of Tibet.

His office said today that the United States Air Force has been asked to rescue the 57-year-old newscaster and author, who is carrying a message from the Dalai Lama to President Truman.

A radio message from Thomas said the accident occurred in a 17,000-foot-high Himalaya pass three days after he and his son, Lowell, Jr., 25, left the Tibetan capital and "forbidden city," Lhasa.

Thomas, the message said, was carried by litter for six days through canyons and rivers to the remote town of Gyantse, where an Indian doctor treated him but had no x-ray facilities and could not make a full diagnosis.

Ford Workers Told To Proceed With Strike Plan

DETROIT, Sept. 23 (AP)—Union leaders were told in a confidential memorandum today to proceed with plans for a strike of 115,000 Ford workers.

The memorandum said published reports that Ford and the CIO United Auto Workers are near a settlement are "completely erroneous and have no foundation in fact."

As a "final word of clarification on strategy" it added that the 12:01 a. m. Thursday contract termination deadline is not necessarily a strike deadline.

The secret document was signed by the UAW's national Ford negotiating committee and sent to all international and regional union offices.

It apparently was aimed at dispelling any belief that a settlement of the pension dispute is ready for signing and to keep union leaders primed for a strike if necessary.

Industry and labor observers had interpreted the UAW's contract termination notice last Monday as the equivalent of a strike notice.

But that notice, said the memorandum, "does not necessarily mean that a strike automatically begins" next Thursday if no settlement is reached by then.

"If a satisfactory settlement has not been reached by that time," it added, "all local unions will be notified officially as to what time a strike will start."

The union negotiators said that assignment of pickets, making of picket signs, and other strike preparations "should already be underway."

FEPC Bill Advances

WASHINGTON, Sept. 23 (AP)—A bill to create a Fair Employment Practices Commission was sent to the Senate today by the Senate Labor Committee without any recommendation for or against passage.

Long ago, the committee said, the Communist Party stopped issuing membership cards to members employed in strategic spots. That makes it more difficult, it said, to detect the party membership of such people.

Red Sincerity Questioned By Allied Powers

Vishinsky Ignores Disclosure Of Atom Explosion In USSR

NEW YORK, Sept. 23 (AP)—Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Y. Vishinsky called for a peace pact among the Big Five powers today.

The other big powers were immediately skeptical of Russian sincerity.

American Delegate Warren R. Austin issued a two-sentence statement to the press: "It is the same propaganda as before. As for the proposal for a five-power pact, I must have more information of its substance before commenting."

Britain, France and China were equally skeptical.

In an unusually mild speech notable for what he did not say, Vishinsky ignored President Truman's announcement in Washington that the United States has evidence of an atomic explosion in Russia.

Tito-Stalin Feud Ignored
Vishinsky's major policy speech for Russia in the United Nations Assembly also made no mention of Secretary of State Dean Acheson's comment that Mr. Truman's disclosure would bring no change in American policy.

The Russian omitted all reference to the Tito-Stalin feud and he refused to be drawn into a quarrel with the Nationalist Chinese government, which yesterday accused Russia of directing and aiding Chinese Communists.

Vishinsky dismissed the China charges as slanderous.

Vishinsky made the familiar blast at the Western Powers, especially at the United States and Britain, but he ended on a high note of peace, proposing that the General Assembly:

1. Condemn preparations for a new war he said were being made in the United States and Britain.

2. Condemn further delays in adoption by the United Nations of treaties for the "unconditional prohibition" of atomic weapons and for international control of atomic energy.

Peace Agreement Proposed
3. Call on all nations to settle their disputes peacefully and for the United States, Britain, China, France and the Soviet Union to conclude among themselves a pact for the strengthening of peace.

Mr. Truman's atomic announcement in Washington at noon-time hit the United Nations assembly with tremendous impact.

In a written comment, Assembly President Carlos P. Romulo said every effort must be made to end the atomic deadlock in the United Nations.

Secretary-General Trygve Lie in a written statement said "if this is true, then the United Nations is more indispensable than ever before."

Girl Shoots Her Doomed Father

STAMFORD, Conn., Sept. 23 (AP)—A girl who discovered her policeman-father has inoperable cancer shot and critically wounded him late today in Stamford Hospital.

"She didn't want him to suffer," Police Chief John B. Brennan said in describing the shooting of Sgt. Carl Paigh by his 20-year-old daughter, Carol.

Sgt. Paigh was reported near death as a result of a bullet wound in his head. His daughter collapsed in a fit of hysteria after the shooting and was put to bed in the hospital after she had been dosed with sedatives. A police guard was placed at her bedside.

Chief Brennan said no charge has yet been lodged against the girl.

Dr. William H. Smith said Carol, a student at the University of New Hampshire, was present when he had to report to Paigh's wife that her husband was "riddled with cancer" and the case was inoperable.

Medical Aid Program Approved By Senate

WASHINGTON, Sept. 23 (AP)—The Senate today approved a five-year $280,000,000 program aimed at increasing the nation's supply of doctors, dentists, nurses and health service technicians.

The bill would provide $40,000,000 in the first year and $60,000,000 in the final year—with an average spending of about $56,000,000 a year during the period.

Released From Leprosarium

Maj. and Mrs. Hans Hornbostel relax on Long Island with their pet Scotties following their motor trip north from the National Leprosarium at Carville, La. Mrs. Hornbostel, suffered from leprosy believed contracted in a Japanese prison camp near Manila, was released when it was found her condition is not contagious.

Steel Producers And Union Begin Contract Talks

Negotiators Strive To Avert Oct. 1 Tieup

PITTSBURGH, Sept. 23 (AP)—The nation's five biggest steel producers plunged into new contract bargaining with the CIO United Steelworkers today in an effort to prevent a nationwide strike.

No decisions were announced. More confabs were scheduled for Monday.

Negotiators are working against a strike set to begin October 1 unless what the union calls "mutually satisfactory agreements" are reached on pensions and insurance programs.

Tension mixed with uncertainty over the situation is blamed for wildcat walkouts which have closed two Pittsburgh steel plants and idled 2,300 workers.

Murray, Stephens Confer

At Indiana Harbor, Ind., Inland Steel Company executives sat down with union negotiators. Similar meetings were held at Pittsburgh, New York and Cleveland.

Most closely watched conference, however, is the discussion between Union Chief Philip Murray and Vice President John A. Stephens of the United States Steel Corporation, world's biggest steelmaker.

The union sent other bargaining teams to New York to dicker with Bethlehem Steel Corporation and to Cleveland for talks with Republic Steel Corporation. Sessions with Jones and Laughlin Steel Corporation also are being held in Pittsburgh.

Pensions Top Issue

The big issue to be resolved in all sessions is whether employers bear the entire costs of pension and social insurance.

The union insists they should. The companies contend workers ought to contribute part of the expense.

A presidential board recommended company financed insurance and pensions. That is the basis for present bargaining sessions.

Lassies Passing Up Opportunity To Win 'Miss Hellcat' Title

ALAMEDA, Calif., Sept. 23 (AP)—A beauty contest going begging for entries.

The winner, if anybody ever enters, will be queen for the athletic Hellcats of the U. S. Naval Air Station here. She will get an expenses paid weekend trip to one of California's best vacation spots.

She also would be known as "Miss Hellcat."

Forrestal Diary Denied Probers

WASHINGTON, Sept. 23 (AP)—The White House has the private papers of the late James V. Forrestal, former secretary of defense, under lock and seal and will not make them public.

The documents—particularly Forrestal's diary—have been sought by the House Armed Services Committee in the belief they might shed some light on the Navy-Air Force controversy over the merits of the giant B-36 bomber.

Meanwhile a naval court of inquiry, which has been looking into the source of now-discredited charges of politics and fraud which swirled about the purchase of B-36's by the Air Force, recessed indefinitely.

Presidential Secretary Charles G. Ross disclosed the presence of Forrestal's personal papers at the White House. He told reporters Forrestal himself left them there for safekeeping shortly after he resigned as defense secretary. A short while later he ended his life in a leap from a window of the naval hospital at Bethesda, Md.

Wanted To Get Rid Of Her Lover's Wife

QUEBEC, Que., Sept. 23 (AP)—Police detained tonight J. A. Guay, a young Quebec jeweler, and Mrs. Arthur Pitre, about 40, as material witnesses in connection with an explosion that caused a Quebec Airway plane to crash killing all 23 aboard.

Guay's 28-year-old wife was one of the 23 passengers and crew who lost their lives when the plane was ripped open by a blast in its luggage compartment last September 9.

Earlier the Canadian Mounted Police said a drug-crazed woman had confessed she put explosives aboard the plane. A high government official identified her as Mrs. Pitre.

Police said she was recovering from sleeping pills she took at the suggestion of her lover, whose wife was aboard the plane.

The crash took the lives of three New York executives of the Kennecott Copper Corporation. They were President E. T. Stannard, President-Designate Arthur D. Storke and Vice President R. J. Parker.

Quebec provincial police detained the woman at her home in Quebec. People living nearby saw police enter the woman's Gaudreau Street home—an apartment. Crowds gathered outside and police were called to keep the curious on the move.

Police Inspector Rene Belec told newsmen:

"We have definite proof that explosives were aboard the plane to get rid of a woman and we believe we can prove who did it."

Police said they had signed statements from Mrs. Pitre that she put explosives on the airliner, which veered sharply off its course and smashed into a mountain near Sault au Cochon, about 40 miles northeast of Quebec.

Inspector Belec indicated that the love triangle and collection of $10,000 worth of insurance motivated the case. He said the victim had a $10,000 policy which named her husband as beneficiary.

Vet Toting Two Guns Terrorizes VA Office

CHICAGO, Sept. 23 (AP)—An Army veteran terrorized 140 persons in a Veterans Administration office today, emphasizing with two guns his demands to be treated for tuberculosis.

William Shimkus, 31, held a woman VA worker imprisoned in a chair for half an hour while Police Sgt. John O'Connor pleaded with him to drop his guns.

Shimkus finally yielded and released the woman, Josephine Neubauer, 45. She promptly fainted.

Shimkus was seized and taken to the county psychiatric hospital.

Truck Drivers Compete

BALTIMORE, Sept. 23 (AP)—The state's champion truck drivers will be chosen here tomorrow at the Maryland Motor Truck Association's annual rodeo. Candidates will be run through tough obstacle courses and grilled on their knowledge of safe driving rules.

Anxious Clamor For Effective Controls Follows President's Announcement Of Soviet Blast

Truman-Stalin Conference Is Proposed; Bradley Counsels People To Keep Calm

WASHINGTON, Sept. 23 (AP)—An anxious clamor for international control of the vast destructive force of the atom arose tonight after President Truman indicated the Russians have broken the American a-bomb monopoly.

Crackdown On Red Spies Is Demanded

WASHINGTON, Sept. 23 (AP)—News of Russia's atomic advances led to new demands today for a crackdown on alleged Communist spies in this country.

The House Un-American Activities Committee—which has been seeking to ferret out Red spies for years—said it shortly will release a report on its investigations "which will prove to the satisfaction of the American people that the Russians have had every opportunity to avail themselves of information on nuclear energy."

Chairman Wood (D-Ga.), who issued that statement, said his group had had information for months "that if the Russians haven't got the atomic bomb they're just plain dumb."

Keep Calm, Bradley Says
The country's top military man, Gen. Omar N. Bradley, counseled everybody to keep his head:

"The calmer the American people take this matter the better," said the chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff.

"We have anticipated it for four years and it calls for no change in our basic defense plan."

Bradley, as if to show he himself was not worried, spent part of the day playing golf.

Dr. Arthur H. Compton, noted scientist, said:

"This does not mean that Russia is prepared now to match us in atomic war. Time is needed to accumulate enough atomic weapons."

"It does mean that within the next few years Russia will be able to wage effective atomic warfare. Unless firm agreements are reached to the contrary, the atomic weapons race is on."

An optimistic note was struck at Bonn, Germany, by Prof. Otto Hahn, regarded as a discoverer of nuclear fission.

Both Sides Rest In Trial Of Reds

NEW YORK, Sept. 23 (AP)—Taking testimony in the trial of 11 American Communist leaders came to an end today in the trial's 36th week.

The defense rested after calling its 35th witness and the government promptly followed suit. There was no rebuttal testimony.

It probably will be at least two weeks before the conspiracy case goes to the jury. Federal Judge Harold R. Medina excused the 15 jurors, including three alternates, until October 4, indicating that final summations by the lawyers will begin then.

The next court session will be next Wednesday, when defense motions are expected to be presented in the absence of the jury.

Only six of the 11 defendants took the stand, although defense spokesmen had indicated when the trial began last January 17 that all would testify.

Originally, the 12 top leaders of the Communist Party, comprising its politburo, were indicted last year under the Smith Act on charges of conspiracy to advocate the overthrow of the United States government by violence.

It was the first such case ever brought against Communists in this country.

"Miracle Of Intelligence" Supplied A-Blast Evidence

WASHINGTON, Sept. 23 (AP)—A "miracle of intelligence" enabled the United States to learn of the atomic explosion in Russia, a source close to President Truman said today.

He did not elaborate. The word intelligence—in its narrow sense—suggests the possibility of secret agents working behind the iron curtain.

But in its broader sense it covers other possibilities.

The "intelligence" may have been supplied through radiation-detection instruments—perhaps with a simultaneous tipoff from instruments primarily designed to detect earthquakes.

Earthquake-recording instruments in Germany or Italy conceivably could have detected an "explosion" in Russia under certain conditions, a Georgetown University expert on earthquakes told a reporter.

President Truman, senators, scientists and many others joined in calling for agreement between Russia and non-Communist nations to clamp down effective curbs. So far all attempts at agreement have failed.

Mr. Truman's historic announcement earlier in the day says:

"We have evidence that within recent weeks an atomic explosion has occurred in the U.S.S.R."

That was a fateful portent that the Russians have cracked the great secret.

As a matter of fact, a high United States security official told a reporter tonight:

"There's no question about it. It was an atomic bomb. But so far as we know Russia has made only one bomb. They'll never catch up with us."

Keep Calm, Bradley Says
The country's top military man, Gen. Omar N. Bradley, counseled everybody to keep his head:

"The calmer the American people take this matter the better," said the chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff.

"We have anticipated it for four years and it calls for no change in our basic defense plan."

Bradley, as if to show he himself was not worried, spent part of the day playing golf.

"This does not mean that Russia is prepared now to match us in atomic war. Time is needed to accumulate enough atomic weapons."

"It does mean that within the next few years Russia will be able to wage effective atomic warfare. Unless firm agreements are reached to the contrary, the atomic weapons race is on."

An optimistic note was struck at Bonn, Germany, by Prof. Otto Hahn, regarded as a discoverer of nuclear fission.

Truman - Stalin Meeting Urged

"If both the United States and Russia have the atomic bomb," he said, "there will be no war. It will be the same as it was with poison gas."

Both sides refrained from using poison gas in World War II.

Just where in the broad reaches behind the iron curtain the explosion took place was not indicated in the White House statement. But at Rome Pietro Nenni said it occurred in Eastern Siberia. He is a leader of pro-Communist Socialists and recently returned from a visit to Moscow.

Senate Delays Vote On Military Pay Hike

WASHINGTON, Sept. 23 (AP)—The Senate today postponed action on a pay hike for the armed forces although Sen. Chapman (D-Ky.) urged prompt approval of the measure which he said is part of America's "insurance against war."

After brief debate on the $300,000,000 proposal, the Senate agreed to vote on it at 4 p. m. (EST) Monday. Under the legislation most ranks from private to major general would get a pay boost. The House approved a similar bill on June 15.

But the scientist—Rev. Edward Powers, S. J.—said that such detection would only disclose that some kind of explosion had taken place.

The instruments, he said, would not be able to distinguish between an atomic and some other kind of explosion.

He declared, however, it is possible to distinguish between an explosion and an earthquake because the latter produces varieties of shock waves that an explosion does not produce.

Another possibility is that evidence of the blast may have been picked up on Geiger counters—instruments which can detect atomic "rays" in the ground or in the atmosphere.

The maximum range of such instruments has not been made known, however.

Church Puts Parable Of Talents To Work To Raise Needed Funds

HADDONFIELD, N. J., Sept. 23 (INS)—A small-town minister, who told his congregation to help themselves to the money in the collection plate, is producing a modern version of the Parable of the Talents.

Dr. Jarvis S. Morris and the trustees of the Bethany Presbyterian Church in Haddonfield were near financial disaster several months ago.

They had a small church with 150 members and a $5,000 mortgage. They needed more ground, a parsonage, an organ and repairs on the church. In short, they needed $13,141.

Said Dr. Morris today:

"Nearly everybody believes that if Christianity is applied, it will solve the problem of our modern day. But how to apply it was the $64 question."

Mrs. Ed Pywell, a trustee's wife, hit upon the idea of putting the Parable of Talents to work. Dr. Morris said:

"Before the trustees meeting was half over, every man present had volunteered to take personal responsibility for the $1,000 bank note needed to get the plan rolling. And one man offered to put up his home as collateral if necessary."

"A few Sundays later it was my privilege to preach on the Parable of the Talents and startle the 65 people present with the statement that we would pass the offering plates to give out money and not to take it."

Adults were told to take $10 or more. Young people $5 and children $1. They were asked to put the money to work for the church, and return any profits they might earn. Dr. Morris believes the results are amazing.

"Mrs. Pywell baked cakes and juggled them on crowded buses to friends in Philadelphia through the hottest summer on record," Dr. Morris said.

"Ernest Deuter, ten years old and the proud steward of $1 of talent money, peddled the cup cakes his mother made and now has $42.30. He hopes to push it all the way to $50 by November 19—the final reckoning will be made—thus earning for the Master and the church 5,000 per cent on the original investment."

Rolland Braun painted a public garage to stretch his $10 to $200. Women sold brooms, sat with babies, or washed spreads and blankets.

A strawberry festival and street fair netted $100, and a group of men giving a turkey dinner at the church each month hope to raise $1,000 toward the fund.

Mrs. Eric Anderson was losing the sight in one eye and facing the possibility of complete loss of sight while she more than doubled her talent money baking for her neighbors.

"As for me and my garden and bees which have always just been fun," reported Dr. Morris, "there is about $150 so far."

The worst that Dr. Morris—who holds five college degrees and once was president of Polytechnic Institute of Puerto Rico—has suffered is "three stings from over-indignant under-developed female money gatherers."

County Board Adopts Policy On Road Work

The Allegany County Board of Commissioners stated yesterday that new county roads will be built under the federal aid program and the County Roads Department will concentrate solely on road maintenance.

produced yesterday by Commissioner William H. Lemmert. The policy statement noted several factors which must be considered in the building of new roads. One of the most important is whether or not the construction of a new thoroughfare will pay for itself in time by the decrease in maintenance costs.

It was also stated that the primary purposer of roads constructed under the federal aid program is to provide farm to market roads. In Allegany County, the report adds, the board must consider the desirability of transporting farm produce, coal and other natural resources which are produced locally.

"These factors which have been listed along with many others, must be considered in determining the desirability of constructing a road in any particular location. The question cannot be answered solely upon consideration of population or local assessments," the statement continued.

As an example, the board policy report noted that the Mill Run Road, which is one and a quarter miles, has but 30 families and $25,000 assessment. However, it serves three farms, three coal mines and one church, in addition. It also serves 12 families, six farms and four coal mines and Garrett County and connects Allegany County with Grantsville, Oakland and other Garrett points. The road is also a means of access to recreation areas used by residents of this county and is also used as a school bus and rural mail route, the report added.

After considering all factors, the board stated, for the next two years, they have decided upon the following program:

"Mill Run Road. This road was surveyed and estimates were made in 1945. The maximum cost of said road to the County would be $54,000; the balance being provided by federal aid.

"Lower Town Creek Road. It is proposed that two miles of road be constructed on Lower Town Creek Road in the next two years. The State Roads Commission has agreed to complete a survey in the near future so that work can be commenced on schedule. The road will cost the county approximately $30,000 a mile.

"Williams Road. One mile of construction on Williams Road has been proposed at a probable cost to the county of $54,000. Work on this road is being delayed until a survey has been made by the State Roads Commission."

The commissioners concluded that this program will leave county employees free to devote their full time to the maintenance of county roads and make more money available for overall construction and maintenance.

County Board Considers Two Bond Requests

Requests for the issuance of bonds occupied a great deal of the time of the Allegany County Board of Commissioners yesterday.

No decision was reached at a conference on the City of Cumberland's request that the county issue one half of its $1,000,000 pledge for flood control work.

The request has been made by City Finance Commissioner William H. Buchholz, who stated that all but $137,000 of a $700,000 flood bond account has been exhausted. An additional $800,000 bond issue is to be floated by the city, but officials feel that the county should assume its prorated share of the current costs.

Commissioner Charles N. Wilkinson said the county would carry out its obligation, but would like to await disbursement by the city of its entire bond issue.

Commissioners William H. Lemmert and James Holmes stated that they felt it best to wait until the money was absolutely necessary so as to save on interest costs.

The federal government is asking for $500,000 from local sources for the next phase of the flood control project and if the city is required to carry the entire load little money will be left for acquisition of land, relocation of sewers and utilities, Buchholz told the county board.

He said that within the next year a total of $250,000 will be required for land acquisition. He listed costs of $99,366 since June 30 on this phase of the project.

City Attorney Thomas B. Finan pointed out that the pledge is not required today or tomorrow but a definite pledge is asked within the next six months.

The discussion was ended with the county board asking for three or four days to make a decision on the city's request.

Another request for a bond issue came from the LaVale Sanitary Commission who is seeking $350,000 for installation of a water supply system in the residential area.

William A. Douglas, chairman of the LaVale group, informed the county board that under legislation enacted setting up the commission, a bond issue up to ten per cent of the total assessed value of the area is permissible.

The LaVale area has an assessment far above the requirement under the act.

Douglas said a survey and preliminary plans for the new water supply should be available from Whitman, Requaardt and Associates, Baltimore engineering consultants, by October 15.

He also stated that final plans should be drawn up by January 1, 1950, and a contract let by February 1. The LaVale Commission expects a new water supply to be ready for use by June 1 of next year.

A similar bond issue of $75,000 is also being drawn up by the county for the Cresaptown Sanitary Commission. Water from the City of Cumberland system will be used by Cresaptown but no decision has been announced concerning the source of the LaVale supply.

Bridge Closing To Be Asked

City Engineer Ralph Rizer will be asked at Monday's Council meeting to suspend traffic on the Cumberland Street Bridge over the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad, Police and Fire Commissioner William V. Keegan announced yesterday.

In explaining his intended action, the commissioner said residents of the section have been annoyed considerably by the noise vehicles make as they cross the bridge.

Keegan said he has information that repairs to the bridge have been classed as "emergency" for the past six months by the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad.

The commissioner declared that equipment and material for the project has been brought to the bridge.

ready for the beginning of work, but nothing has been done.

Housing Official To Confer Here

An outline of the government's slum program will be given to the Allegany County Board of Commissioners Tuesday by a representative of the Public Housing group from Washington.

The City of Cumberland has set up a Public Housing Authority in connection with the federally-financed program and the county has the matter under consideration.

P. Patrick Allendar, business agent of the Carpenter's Union, AFL, and C. William Spangler, local veteran's representative, met with the board yesterday and were informed of the meeting plans.

The board received a letter from the Cumberland Real Estate Board saying that the group had passed a resolution opposing any change in the rotating system of assessment against real estate.

In answer to a request by Clyde Koonz, the board said that as soon as the Board of Education provides a deed for the newly-abandoned Paper Mill School at Locust Grove, it will be turned over to a civic group for use as a community center at a yearly rental of $1.

Formation of an organization, with a board of trustees, would be necessary before the Locust Grove group could legally obtain possession of the structure.

Czechoslovakia's New Look in Fairy Princes

The unimaginative Communist government of Czechoslovakia has cracked down on the thinking of Czech children. No longer may they read about fairy tale princes. Instead, they must find their inspiration and examples in Klement Gottwald, Czech premier, and "the shock workers and heroes of work."
"Shock workers and heroes of work" in the Czech definition are not self-made men who have reached the top through hard work and personal success. They are automatons, above-quota producers, and the party faithful, those who have hewed to the Communist line without a thought of their own. They are about as far from fairy princes as it is possible to get.
The outlook is horrible indeed. Think what it would mean if the United States were to follow the Czech example. Frank Merriwell, Tom Swift, Jack-the-Giant-Killer, Snow White and even Tom Sawyer would be tossed out of the window as unfit examples to inspire children. Replacing them would be a varied assortment of national characters.
No one with the qualities of J. Edgar Hoover or Dwight Eisenhower could possibly be considered. But Harry Bridges would be a perfect choice. His activities as head of the longshoremen are right down the Gottwald alley. Then there are others. Perhaps Earl Browder, Paul Robeson and William Z. Foster would be hoisted on a pedestal. They have all distinguished themselves in one way or another.
The "new look" in fairy princes will hardly produce an inspired future generation. It may be all right for the Communist Czechs, but as for young Americans, the old fare is best. Tom Sawyer has something inspiring about him that Harry Bridges lacks.

Automobiles of the future will be smaller, it is again predicted. If they make them any lower, flat heads, as well as hatless ones, may become the vogue.

Salt, Dirt and Yonder

They say the best way to get over a pique is to work it out, and that's what the Navy intends to do. The seagoing service was handed a heavenly chance of getting home its point regarding the strategic value of carrier-based aircraft the other day when Defense Secretary Johnson decreed the new project of "cross indoctrination" for members of the Joint Chiefs of Staff Organization and lesser brass of the three branches of service.
It is supposed to work in this fashion: Gen. "Lightning Joe" Collins, top man of the Army, and General Hoyt Vandenberg, Air Force head, will be guests of Chief of Naval Operations Louis Denfeld aboard a carrier. Admiral Denfeld and General Collins will take a hop in a B-36, and General Vandenberg and Admiral Denfeld will be bumped and bashed around in a Sherman tank.
Presumably, the chiefs of the guest service in each case will become more conversant with the operating problems of the host service. The practice will not stop with the top rank stratum. Considerable numbers of Army, Navy and Air Force officers will cover themselves with salt, wild blue yonder, and just plain dirt in the interest of better cohesion and cooperation.
How it will work remains to be seen, although it's safe to assume that preconceived ideas and stiffness of neck will dissolve to some extent under the pangs of natural curiosity any military officer has for a sister branch of the service. And with curiosity may come understanding.
The Navy, which has played to hostile audiences in the Defense Department for some years, now will have first crack at it, and it will have the star attraction, Mr. Johnson, as its guest. The way it is told, Mr. Johnson is going to get the works aboard a carrier operating in the Atlantic off the Virginia Capes.
He'll be flown aboard, helicoptered to other ships, and perhaps flown ashore. Navy expectations are that the secretary, having seen what flat-tops can do, will be asking himself, "How can I be so wrong?"
Mr. Johnson, like a good umpire, won't change his basic decision, but the Navy's stock may be expected to rise a few points. And that's a step toward better understanding.

Reports from London indicate that the Labor government has been unable to entice the bluebirds back to the White Cliffs of Dover.

Hushaby Motor Experts

Could it be that Detroit seeks to turn motorists into a bunch of supersensitive sound sissies and noise ninnyhs? Yep, could be.
Shhhh! Silence, please, while we quote a fine line of 1949 motor publicity featuring "quietness at all speeds." It says here in hushed tones:
"Not only has the fan pitch and speed been lowered to reduce engine whine, but the engine silencer has been made more effective. All air drawn into the engine passes through four silencing chambers. First of these is the hiss chamber.
"Practically simultaneously the vibrating air column enters the high, intermediate and low tone tuning chambers which neutralize sound vibrations spanning the musical scale. Even the untrained layman will quickly detect the marked improvement, particularly at high speeds."
Untrained layman, eh? We resent that. There's no such animal. Not any more. Time was when we could buff-bam, joggle-jostle down a slam-wham side road and be perfectly slap-bang happy in our squeak-rattle chug chug. We were untrained laymen then, but that was before motorom's public relations experts had worked us over and made us decibel-conscious. Drat 'em! We had more fun when you couldn't hear the engine for the fender din.
If the hushaby experts really want to tackle a toughy, why don't they do something about that noisy old ruffian, the household water pipe? Modern plumbing, they call it! Hydrants howl. Faucets fizz. Tees, elbows, unions give day-long vent to banshee walls all through the sprinkling system.
Thanks to water pipes, even in "sound-proof" apartments you always know when the Joneses bathe, shave, brush their teeth, etc.
Let Solomons of Silence find a way to hush plumbing and we'll settle gladly for a few engine sighs under the hood.
A writer says the average girl loves to cling to her youth. And he never seems to object.

HOW TO KEEP WELL

Lady Quacks

QUACKERY is an old profession and one of the most dastardly because it exploits suffering humanity. The sick often are desperate and grasp at any straw that offers hope. It is no wonder that medicine has attracted these pretenders who, through ignorance and greed, find it profitable to sell their wares.
The secret of the success of medical fakery lies in the use of cunning tactics and skill in the use of cunning. Before the era of printing they relied upon their lungs to impress an audience. Afterward, handbills were circulated and space purchased in the newspapers to proclaim their success in treating disease. Men and women who lived in the era before radio and television may not appreciate how lucky they were.
There have been many notorious charlatans in the past and there will be more in the future. The more famous became fabulously wealthy and often found their way into influential society and even hob-nobbed with royalty. The business of quackery was by no means confined to men. According to C. J. S. Thompson in his book, "The Quacks of Old London," the female fraud was already in business during the 16th century. Tomazine Scarlet was one and, according to the court records was "a woman so egregiously ignorant that she confessed she knew nothing of Physick, neither could read or write, yet had hundreds under her cure to whom she gave medicines."
The majority of these ladies introduced themselves as "gentlewomen" and professed to be the wife, relative, or helper of a renowned doctor, now deceased. Thompson includes many advertisements and handbills in his book and they all follow a somewhat similar pattern.
The gentlewoman meekly announced her arrival in London and confessed that she was a stranger and sought it best to make herself known through the medium of a printed paper. Otherwise the people would not hear about her for several years, inferring that if she had not advertised, many individuals would have suffered unnecessarily before the word got about that a wonderful healer was in town. Milady then gave her qualifications, a few testimonials, and a long list of conditions she could cure.
Widow Drew, for example, was the daughter of a "Doctor of Physick and who for twenty years and upwards visited her Father's patients, prepared physick for them and administered to all her sex."
"Her Pills certainly cure the green-sickness and change the pale, greenish Tallow coloured, nasty and Death-like look of the patient, into a fair, lovely, florid and healthy complexion." This goes on and on and includes a dig at the regular physician about saving some one's limb which otherwise would have been amputated.
Others recommended a "Tincture for fits, a Powder for the Green-sickness, a Pill for a dry cough, a Diet-Drink to cure the King's Evil, an Infusor for a third day Ague, Pills and Powder to Purge the Head, a Water for Sore-Eyes, an Elixir for Gales" and many other remedies too tedious to mention. These impostors also carried a complete stock of cosmetics to beautify the face, to remove pimples and freckles, and concoctions to make the complexion lovely. They had lip salves, pearl powders to whiten the skin, and curious masks and forehead cloths to remove all spots and wrinkles as well as pits and scars caused by smallpox.

Immunity From Transfusion
I. M. writes: If a person receives a transfusion from a person who has had infantile paralysis, does the transfused person become immune to this disease?
REPLY
This question brings up the extremely involved problem of immunity in polio. If the person who received such a transfusion failed to develop polio, he could not give credit to the transfusion because of individuals who come down with polio. On the other hand, if polio did occur, it would be obvious that the transfusion was ineffective. But this is not all. One attack of polio creates immunity but we do not know whether or not the immune bodies are carried in the blood. Even if they are, we do not know whether the amount of such protective bodies in one transfusion would be sufficient to produce immunity. Now you can understand why the question is so involved.

Measles
P. R. writes: Could a child of 14 months have measles? A friend of mine says no and insists that children must have regular measles first.
REPLY
German measles usually occurs later in childhood than regular measles but not because there is any connection between the two. They are separate and distinct diseases. Regular measles is more contagious and is likely to be contracted when first encountered; consequently, by the laws of chance, regular measles is likely to be contracted first.

Lewis Called Strike Despite Fact 99 Per Cent Of Operators Contributed To Welfare Fund; John L. Wants Higher Pension Fund Than Murray
—Says DREW PEARSON

WASHINGTON.—When John L. Lewis sent the strike call down the line—"No welfare payments, no work"—it was one of the biggest hoaxes he has ever pulled on the big miners and the American public.
For, actually, the welfare payments were being made. Not a single Northern operator had suspended payments. They were living up to the spirit of the contract even when no contract existed.
And in the South only three or four operators, including the Island Creek and the Pond Creek companies of West Virginia, had stopped the payments.
In other words, Lewis penalized all the operators who were co-operating—which was 99 per cent of them—on the false pretext that the Southern operators were not contributing to the welfare fund.
Real fact, however, is that Lewis wanted an excuse for a general walkout without leaving himself open to possible court action by personally calling a strike. Thus, he made it appear that a great many operators were withholding the royalty payments on coal tonnage.
Lewis vs. Murray
The real reasons for Lewis's tactics in fomenting the strike at this particular time were:
1. He has always wanted to bargain in the fall as the cold season sets in rather than in the spring when demand for coal diminishes.
2. Lewis has spent the welfare portion of his welfare-pension plan so extravagantly that he has to have more money. It has not been the fault of the operators that this fund has been dissipated.
3. Lewis wanted to humiliate and embarrass his old friend and now enemy, CIO Chief Phil Murray.
The President's fact-finding board in the steel dispute has already recommended 10 cents an hour in welfare-pension benefits for steel workers. This is relatively the same amount as Lewis gets from the coal operators. Therefore if Lewis, by striking or three cents more royalty out of the coal operators he will be able to preen his feathers at Murray and boast that he is a much better friend of labor.
Meanwhile and to satisfy Lewis's vanity, the entire nation will soon be short of coal despite the fact that all but three or four of the coal operators were continuing to make payments into the miners welfare-pension fund even though they had signed no contracts.
President's Legion Days
When dynamic Clyde Lewis called at the White House the other day, President Truman warmly congratulated him on being the first World War II vet to be elected national commander of the Veterans of Foreign Wars.
"But," added Truman, with a twinkle in his eye, you fellows don't have the pep of us World War I boys."
Then he recalled that during an American Legion convention in Kansas City some years back he and a few cronies led a bull into the lobby of the Muehlbach Hotel.
"And do you know what the critter did?" continued the President in mock horror. "He had an accident right on the floor. The spot's still on the hotel rug."
Note—Lewis, whose politics differ from Truman's, remarked afterward to friends: "I'm a rock-ribbed Republican, but you can't help liking Mr. Truman."

Ladies On Merry-Go-Round
In private conversation, President Truman refers to the First Lady as "the Madam." ... Mrs. Eugene Anderson of Red Wing, Minn., is slated for an ambassadorial post soon. ... Dynamic India Edwards, who heads the women's division of the Democratic Party, spends much of her spare time concocting new dishes over the family stove. She continued her hobby throughout her reducing diet in which she lost 34 pounds. ... Only pause in the 51 per center explosions was when General Vaughan and Senator McCarthy both took time out to laud able Ruth Shipley, long-time head of the State Department's Passport Division. ... Blonde, vivacious Federal Communications Commissioner Frieda Hennock is taking elocution lessons in her spare time. ... Charming Sen. Margaret Chase Smith (R., Me.), not only knows the economics of Maine's famous spuds, but is a real authority on how they should be cooked. ... First dollar bills with the signature of the new U. S. Treasurer, Georgia Neese Clark, will be in general circulation in about one month.
Prodigal Senator Returns
Idaho's repentant Sen. Glen Taylor, who broke with the Democrats to run for vice president on the Henry Wallace ticket, came face to face the other day with the man he revolted against — Harry Truman. This was their first meeting since Truman secretly summoned Taylor to the White House in 1948 and begged him to stay true to the Democratic party.
But the President seemed to hold no grudges. He was standing in front of his desk when Taylor was ushered into the office and gestured as if to welcome back the prodigal son.
"I was happy to see you elected," declared Taylor, earnestly.
The President replied that he had been through the same thing before in Missouri where he wasn't supposed to have a chance. But by going to the people with his case, he always won.
The presidential campaign, remarked Truman, "was the same thing as before only on a bigger scale."
When the subject of more recent politics was broght up, Taylor observed: "I have voted with you on every domestic issue, but I still can't agree with your get-tough foreign policy."
"That is the only way to handle the Russians," declared the President with conviction.
Later, as the reoriented rebel from Idaho departed, the President called after him: "See you again."

Common Currency Seen As Strategy Against Russia

By MARK SULLIVAN

During the week preceding the British devaluation of the pound, there was in session at Washington a conference of the heads of the Treasury and foreign relations departments of Britain, Canada and the United States. Their conference included the situation which resulted in the British devaluation, but was much broader.
And that conference of three nations was only one of nearly a dozen international conferences that were under way in Washington that week. Some were formal, such as the meeting of the heads of the International Monetary Fund. Other conferences were informal. There were present in Washington the foreign ministers or other high officials of some 13 foreign governments, practically all the important ones that are outside the Russian orbit. Some who came for formal purposes took advantage of their presence in Washington together to confer informally on common problems.
Economic Problem In Front
The common problem in front of the nations outside the Russian orbit was political. What the nations outside the Russian orbit are now most intent upon is the achievement of economic strength, not merely as individual nations but jointly. Their urgent wish is to bring about among themselves international trade relations which will give the group of them economic strength in the world context between them and Russian Communism.
Toward larger international trade among the nations outside the Russian orbit, the devaluation of the British pound, followed within a day and a half by devaluation of the currencies of some 20 other nations, was one step. It was not voluntary. Chaotic relations of currencies to each other was an extreme impediment to international trade among them. No matter how the economy of one nation might recover within its own borders, there was a point at which it could go further without facility for international trade. This condition was already present or in sight in several European countries; it composed the crisis which precipitated the devaluation of currencies.
The devaluation is a considerable step, but it is impossible to look upon as either a whole cure or a permanent one. So long as one nation can re-value its currency overnight there cannot be the confidence about the future which is indispensable to healthy international trade.
For this reason, a vague aspiration has begun to emerge among persons who concern themselves with the fundamental condition of the time, which is the world conflict between Russian Communism and resistance to it. Such persons see, as a chief strategy in that conflict, larger economic strength and co-operation among the nations outside the Russian orbit. For achieving this, they give thought to a common currency. They suggest that it be adopted by a group of the nations—the United States and Britain as the strongest ones economically, together with some other nations now tied to the British pounds in the so-called "sterling bloc." The common currency thus envisaged would probably be the dollar.
Many Impediments To Trade
So novel and far-reaching a step would encounter difficulty and take time. Yet the fact remains that the present devaluations of 20 separate currencies, even if the new valuations remain in effect for a considerable time, do not meet the deep crisis that precipitated the devaluations. There remain many other

Statute Not Likely To Gain Real Service Unification

By DAVID LAWRENCE

WASHINGTON, Sept. 23 — An other strange chapter in the B-36 controversy is being written. Now the Air Force secretary, hitherto quite vocal on the subject, declines to testify before the Naval Court of Inquiry.
This Naval Court, however, is a court created by statute and has the power of subpoena and can command the presence, as a witness, anybody inside or outside the government. Yet the Secretary of the Air Force, Stuart Symington, has declined to appear in response to an "invitation" and the implication is that, if the Secretary's testimony is really desired, it will have to be compelled by subpoena.
The Secretary of the Navy has the power not only to convene and adjourn the court but to indicate the line of questioning it may adopt through the latter authority is rarely exercised. Now that Mr. Symington has been relieved of the necessity of testifying, and this Naval court has been prevented from getting pertinent testimony, the whole Naval Court idea will deteriorate.
What Testimony Sought
Just why does the Secretary of the Air Force decline to testify and just what testimony is being sought from him by the naval court?
The episode starts with a recent investigation by the House Armed Services Committee. Mr. Symington testified that he knew who wrote the so-called anonymous memorandum and he intimated that a "series of individuals" wrote it. He was not asked to name the authors. Mr. Symington also told the House committee that the Air Force had made an investigation of the source of the attacks on the B-36, but the House committee has never released a copy of the report placed before it by the Secretary of the Air Force.
Mr. Symington now says that the chairman of the House Armed Services Committee, Rep. Carl Vinson, Democrat of Georgia, doesn't want him to testify on the Air Force investigation report. This is strange, indeed, because Mr. Vinson was quoted when the committee recessed recently as having said that there were plenty of persons in the Navy involved and as, in effect, challenging the Navy to go ahead and pursue the inquiry, which it promptly did.
During the Naval court's sessions, Cedric Worth has testified that he alone was the author and he has contradicted the testimony given by various persons who claimed the memorandum was "anonymous." Mr. Worth says he personally delivered the memorandum to various members of Congress before the House committee's investigation was ordered, and that he told them plainly he was the author and that the document was not "anonymous" but was submitted at the request of a member of Congress.
Mr. Symington, in refusing to testify before the Naval court, says: "Any testimony that I might give the court could well have the appearance of entering into an inter-service controversy, since I, as Secretary of the Air Force, would be testifying on matters concerning the internal affairs of the Navy Department."
Same Solicitude Absent
The same solicitude was absent, however, when the Secretary of the Air Force testified before the House Armed Services Committee, whose hearings certainly had more than an "appearance" of entering into an inter-service controversy.
The Naval Court of Inquiry, moreover, has a right to know how and why the Air Force investigated a sister service, using detectives or inspectors to get evidence which was then submitted to a Congressional committee. It would appear that if the proprieties had been carefully observed, the Secretary of the Air Force should have asked the Secretary of the Navy to conduct the inquiry as to the alleged activities of Navy personnel against the Air Force. Likewise, as a reciprocal courtesy, the Secretary of the Navy might well have asked the Secretary of the Air Force to investigate the attacks made in print on the Navy by Air Force officers. Testimony to this effect was placed in the record of the House Armed Services Committee, but nothing was done about it.
Indeed, there was really very little cross-examination by the House committee. It was a one-sided investigation. Naval officers were not put on the witness stand. One of the things a Naval Court of Inquiry permits is cross-examination of witnesses. When Mr. Symington declines to testify, he avoids cross-examination as to why he investigated a sister service.
All this merely adds to the mystery and shows that unification in spirit will never be achieved by statute or executive order and that it can be accomplished only when each service is permitted to evaluate its own weapons and when Presidents for each are fixed by the President and the Director of the Budget and the Secretary of Defense, without permitting the heads of two armed services to decide how much money a third armed service shall have. Three West Point graduates versus one Annapolis graduate deciding budgets in the Joint Chiefs of Staff will not promote unity or mutual trust or an effective national defense.

These Days By GEORGE E. SOKOLSKY

The Common Man

The phrase, the common man, is a particularly offensive one to a person who dislikes class distinctions and hates all forms of snobbery, whether it is the type that thrived on Fifth Avenue when Vanderbilt had money, or Henry Wallace's broad distinction between himself and the rest of mankind. Most of us are pretty much the same breed and when greatness is scratched a little, it is discovered to be of the same clay as the most common.
So it was interesting to read a novel by Charles Yale Harrison in which the common man is called "Nobody's Fool," which gives the book its title. Harrison's style is a bit too sexy and the language unnecessarily vulgar at times but the novel is a realistic survey of that wonderful industry called public relations which is designed to make people believe what they are wanted to believe.
The worst offender in this business has been the Government of the United States which spent billions of dollars confusing the American people, particularly in the field of international relations. For instance, while this country was at war, the terrific force of the OWI and other propaganda agencies of the government devoted themselves to making a distinction between good and bad dictators. Stalin was a good dictator who loved democracy and had to kill off his associates because they were bad men; Hitler was a bad dictator who believed and practised fascism which was bad. Communism was not good but it also was not bad. Salazar of Portugal was not so bad a dictator but France was very bad because in addition to opposing Stalin, he was a Roman Catholic. Mikhalovich was a wonderful democrat for a while, but then he became bad because Tito was good. Then Tito was bad but now he is good. Chiang Kai-Shek was good once but now he is bad.
This kind of stuff should be disgusting to anyone with common sense, but the memory of most men is short and only those who have an ax to grind keep files of what other men say and do to remind them of their trickeries. In this novel, "Nobody's Fool," Charles Yale Harrison takes the public relations set-up and makes it live. I could give a living name to his principal characters and it would not be coincidental, for these hard-boiled public relations men are all over the lot and it is usual for them to give their clients advice which pulls them out of temporary troubles but gets them involved in permanent stupidsities.
I do not condemn an entire profession and if anybody needs that kind of person, I can recommend one or two who do their work with some regard to public morals. On the other hand, I know plenty of these very smart fellows who are exactly like the character in this novel which you should read if you want to know how you and I are hoodwinked by what might be called the pressures of the preponderance of public opinion.
This story is about how a public relations house builds "The Common Man" into a personality and cleans up on it. The boss of the public relations outfit describes the "Common Man" as follows:
"... He'd have a certain working skill and the people in his crowd would think a lot of him. He wouldn't be the muscle-bound, dumb symbol that you see in radical magazines ... the time, he'd tell you if you asked him, wasn't a quarter to doom or it's later than you think; he'd look at his watch and tell you. The man I'm talking about is the guy that makes and breaks corporations by his sudden and inexplicable switches in tastes and opinions, who elects presidents and sends all the experts and prophets to bed with migraine headaches every time one of those unexpected landslides starts moving."
It is not at all surprising that everybody, from the President down, falls for their build up. You have yourself seen a salesman worked over by public relations men until he is one of the great men of the world. Then they drop him and you don't even remember his name.

Junior Woman's Civic Club Committee Leaders Named

Mrs. Ray Brown Is Speaker At Dinner

Miss Anne Griffith presided and named her committee chairmen at the opening meeting of the fall and winter season of the Junior Woman's Civic Club held last night in the form of a dinner meeting at the Elks Club. Miss Betty Bright, Program chairman, introduced Mrs. Ray Brown, president of the First District, American Federation of Women's Clubs, who was the guest speaker.

Mrs. William A. Douglas, president of the senior club, and Mrs. Arthur C. Bright, during whose presidency the junior club was organized, were guests. The latter offered the invocation.

Chairmen for the year are Miss Jane Harris, Civic; Mrs. Carl Ballard, Welfare; Mrs. S. Lue Sykes, American Home; Miss Dorothy Williams, Finance; Mrs. Simon Rosenbaum, Membership; Mrs. Ralph Kessler, Parliamentarian; Miss Ann McMullen, Hospitality; Mrs. John McVeigh, Publicity; Miss Bright, Program, and Mrs. Thomas Robinson, Fine Arts. Miss Betty Wolfe was named treasurer completing the term of Miss Nancy Dodge, who resigned when she accepted a position in Philadelphia. Mrs. Paul Fletcher is advisor from the senior club.

Announcing that the year's project of the First District is an increase of membership and to build for universal understanding, Mrs. Brown explained that when there is understanding there is democracy and since there is strength in unity it also strengthens democracy. She urged her audience also to acquire understanding of others, thereby strengthening democracy, and gave statistics pointing out that the voting population had decreased considerably in the past 50 years. She urged the development of a

Margaret Marple To Be Bride Of Albert Mason

Rev. Gearhart To Officiate

Miss Margaret Naomi Marple, daughter of Mrs. Eleanor Marple, 916½ Bedford Street, is to become the bride of Albert Mason, Jr., son of Mr. Albert Mason, Hyndman, and the late Mr. Mason, today. The wedding ceremony is to be solemnized at 2 p. m. in First Christian Church with Rev. G. W. Gearhart officiating. Standards of white flowers are being used in the decorations.

Mrs. Joseph Horebay will be her sister's matron of honor; Mrs. Eleanor Walsh, Mrs. Juanita George, bridesmaids, and Ruth Marie Long, flower girl. Joseph Horebay will serve as Mr. Mason's best man and Albert Marple and John Grabenstein, Jr., are to be ushers.

The bride, who will be given in marriage by her brother-in-law, will be attired in a white satin gown fashioned with a lace yoke, long fitted sleeves and full skirt ending in a sweeping train. Her fingertip length double veil edged with lace is held by a coronet of pearls and she will carry a white Bible with orchid marker to complete her costume.

All her attendants are wearing frocks similar to hers with lace yoke and full skirts and each will have a bonnet matching her gown. The matron of honor will be in turquoise taffeta and carry a fan shaped bouquet of assorted flowers. Mrs. Walsh will wear yellow taffeta and Mrs. George, lavender. The little flower girl's frock is of white satin and lace and her bonnet of white satin is trimmed with lace. All three are carrying baskets of assorted flowers. Mrs. Marple has chosen an elephant gray crepe for her daughter's wedding; with it she will wear black accessories and an orchid corsage. Mrs. Mason is wearing a garnet costume and also will have a corsage of orchids.

The bride-elect is a graduate of Allegany High School and is employed as a member of the clerical staff of the Celanese Corporation of America. Her fiancé attended Hyndman High School and is engaged in dairy and poultry farming near Hyndman.

Following the ceremony a wedding reception will be given by Mrs. Marple honoring her daughter and her bridal party in the church social rooms. The bridal motif is being carried out in the decorations and the four-tiered wedding cake, topped with a miniature bride and

Farmers' Advice To GOP Conflicts

SIoux CITY, Ia., Sept. 23 (AP)—Republicans in search of a farm program that would help them win back the agricultural vote got sharply conflicting advice today from major farm groups.

The first session of a two-day "tell-us-what-you-want" farm conference in the nation's grain and livestock belt brought these general suggestions:

The National Farmers Union — Get back of the Brannan plan of the Truman administration.

The National Grange — Avoid plans "such as the Brannan Plan" aimed at guaranteeing farmers security or equitable income.

The American Farm Bureau Federation — Give farmers a program with flexible price supports and freed of direct government subsidies.

The Brannan plan advanced last spring by Secretary of Agriculture Brannan would permit prices of surplus perishables to go down. Farmers would get compensatory payments from the Treasury to assure them an "equitable income."

Silver Bars Recovered From Spanish Galleon

MIAMI, Fla., (AP)—An undisclosed number of solid silver bars have been recovered from a sunken Spanish galleon in the Florida Keys. The Smithsonian Institution in Washington confirmed the find today and announced it had bought one of the ingots of solid silver weighing 70 pounds.

The find was made by Arthur McKee, city recreation director of Homestead, Fla., last Memorial Day while pursuing his hobby of making underwater pictures.

Newspaper To Fight Government Charge

CLEVELAND, Sept. 23 (AP)—The Lorian Journal Company will fight a government charge the Lorian, Ohio, newspaper conspired to injure a competing radio station.

Samuel A. Horvitz, Cleveland, company president and one of four officers named in the suit, announced the decision today.

First hearing of the anti-trust civil action will be November 15 before United States District Judge Emerich B. Freed.

The government accuses the newspaper and four of its officers with combining and conspiring to restrain and monopolize the dissemination of news, advertising and other information in violation of the Sherman Anti-Trust Act.

"Sell Party," Patteson Advises Democrats

MARTINSBURG, W. Va., Sept. 23 (AP)—Gov. Patteson urged Young Democrats tonight to "sell the Democratic Party—and be sure you never sell it short."

Addressing the annual convention banquet of the state Young Democratic Clubs, the Governor declared that now is the time to lay the groundwork for the 1950 elections. "Politics isn't a game that you play just before an election, or when the spirit moves you," he declared. "It is a real business, the business of selling your party, of selling a better service to the people."

He reminded that "it is almost traditional that the party in power is caught resting on its oars, while the minority party, being at a disadvantage, fights harder to regain its lost power."

NORTHEAST, Md., Sept. 23 (AP)—Henry Harvey, fish dealer, has been acting strange. His family thought of putting him in an institution. Today he got loose with a shotgun, killed his wife and sister, wounded two brothers and shot himself.

Harvey is not expected to live. He underwent an emergency operation for removal of shotgun pellets around his heart. He is 40.

Killed were Mrs. Louise Harvey, 35, formerly from Bluefield, W. Va., and Miss Elizabeth Harvey, 42, a stenographer in the Cecil County Court clerk's office.

Robert Harvey, 35, was hit in the arm and also in the Union Memorial Hospital at nearby Elkton, Md. George Harvey, 38, was just scratched.

The only ones in the immediate family not harmed were a three-year-old son, Earle, and Harvey's invalid sister.

State Trooper Paul M. Hahn and State's Attorney Henry H. Constable said they learned Harvey has been moody and despondent ever since his father died last Christmas. Once before he threatened the family with a shotgun. Another time he tried to drown his brother George.

Anxious Clamor

Stalin confer immediately to thrash out major points in dispute in the East-West cold war.

Senate Democratic Leader Lucas, of Illinois, called for the United Nations to take the lead. He said the United Nations should now "reconsider the question of atomic energy control and arrive at an agreement acceptable to all."

Mr. Truman did not say it was an atom bomb that exploded. But Secretary of State Acheson, commenting later, said he assumed it was the blast of an atomic weapon.

Repercussion Inevitable

In London, the British government quickly followed up the President's announcement with an almost identical statement. The British likewise urged the need for international control of the A-bomb.

Mr. Truman's disclosure, though long anticipated, hit with a terrific impact in world capitals. Major international repercussions, with possibly a sharp change in the atmosphere of the East-West "cold war," were seen as inevitable.

On Capitol Hill, Sen. McMahon (D-Conn.), chairman of the Senate House Atomic Energy Committee, and several other members of Congress suggested anew that the vital hour has arrived for President Truman to meet with Premier Stalin.

McMahon suggested Mr. Truman might even go to Moscow for such a meeting, if that is the only place it could be held. The President has repeatedly offered to confer with Stalin in Washington, but has said he would not again go overseas to meet the Soviet leader.

flash floods and damage from George's Creek in Allegany County. After completing the Kitzmiller survey, the two Army engineers went to Franklin, W. Va., where they will check into damage on the South Branch of the Potomac caused by last summer's disastrous flood in that area. Already $70,000 has been allocated for flood work along the South Branch, they said, and an additional study is to be made.

2 Ranges Given At Cook School

Two Magic-Chef gas ranges instead of one were awarded at the last session of the Times-News Cooking School yesterday at the Strand Theatre.

The second award was made because the name of a member of the Times-News employee's family was drawn for the first time during the school. She is Mrs. Tom Brailer, 409 Walnut Street.

The prize was donated by the L. Bernstein Furniture Company, but the Times and Allegany Company will pay for another range for Mrs. R. G. Van Newkirk, 218 Cumberland Street, whose name was drawn second.

Other grand prizes were won by Mrs. E. L. Shanholzer, R. D. No. 1, Ridgeley, the S. T. Little Jewelry Co. donation of an International Silver Plated Meat Platter; Regina Britt, Race Street, Leonard's, Inc., donation of a Universal Automatic Electric Iron; Mary J. Conway, 524 Rizer Avenue, the Cumberland Electric Company's General Electric Iron; Mrs. Mary Schultz, 43 Boone Street, three pairs of Nylon tailored curtains from Rosenbaum's; Tillie Smith, Corriganville, a Telechron Electric Minutemaster Kitchen Clock from Whitacre's Maytag Appliance Center.

Mrs. W. H. Shanholzer Roberts Place, a six piece set of Revere kitchen utensils donated by the Cumberland and Allegany Gas Co.; Mrs. Maxine Curry, 17 Weber Street, an Ekco Pressure Cooker from the Cumberland Cook and Suit Store; Mrs. J. T. Cookerly, 300 Avirett Avenue, Hamilton Beach food mixer from the Queen City Co-operative Dairy; Mrs. I. M. Buser, 36 Carpenter Avenue, Maryland Maid fruit cake and an order for 25 loaves of bread from the Community Baking Co., and Mrs. F. T. Bell, R. D. No. 6, 32 piece set of China dishes from the Piedmont Grocery Company.

Pood dishes were awarded to Mrs. Bridget Mason, 948 Maryland Avenue; Pearl Lowery, Hyndman, Pa.; Mrs. G. Lindner, 1010 Bedford Street; Mrs. Carl Dickel, Corriganville; Mrs. James Walton, R. D. Garrett County Applies For School Funds

County Board Adopts Resolution

OAKLAND—The Board of Garrett County Commissioners has authorized application to the State Board of Education and to the Board of Public Works for financial assistance in building the new Oakland High School and another new high school in the northern part of the county.

The board unanimously adopted a resolution authorizing the move at a meeting this week. The motion was introduced by J. Edward Helbig, board president.

An act passed at the last session of the General Assembly authorized creation of a state debt of $20,000,000 to be used to supplement financing construction of public school buildings and public school facilities, and acquisition of real estate.

The funds are to be allocated on a matching basis, with a limit of $60 times the enrollment. Last week, R. Bowen Hardesty, superintendent of schools, announced that 5,071 pupils are enrolled. At $60 per pupil this would amount to a state grant of $304,260.

The county board passed the resolution in order to comply with a section of the act which covers application for the assistance.

Under the resolution, $555,669.65 of the proceeds from the sale of bonds will be allocated to the building of the new school at Oakland, and $84,190.35 from current funds will be used toward cost of erection. The resolution also provides for $499,259.65 for a new high school in the northern part of the county. Another $84,190.35 will be allocated from current funds for building the school.

Garrett Boys In Regional Contests

OAKLAND—Two county boys are participating in regional contests being held at Springfield, Mass., this week.

Donald Giotflety, Bittering, is representing Maryland in a public speaking contest. He was a state-wide winner in June at the University of Maryland. Contestants from 13 states will be represented. He will use a slightly-revised edition of the speech which won him the state prize of $100.

Homer Durst, Grantsville, along with Donald, will represent the state in poultry judging. They were the state-wide winners in June.

These contests were sponsored by the Future Farmers of America and are under the direction of vocational agriculture teachers. Merle Garlett, v-a-g teacher in Grantsville, is accompanying the boys to Springfield.

Giotflety will enter Gettysburg College Monday. Durst is carrying on agricultural projects on his father's farm near Grantsville.

Thief Steals Peaches, Sauerkraut From Home

FROSTBURG—Mrs. Thomas Oden, 200 Ormond Street, reported that 28 quarts of peaches and sauerkraut, which she had put up for the winter months, were stolen from the cellar of her home some time during the night Saturday, September 17.

Mrs. Oden stated that the cellar door was open Sunday morning, when she and her husband discovered the theft but the lock was unbroken. Unable to find any trace of damage, she expressed the opinion that an intruder was in the cellar when her husband, who is partially deaf, locked the cellar door for the night.

Methodist Church Will Operate Orphanage In Burlington, W. Va.

KEYSER, W. Va. — The West Virginia Conference of the Methodist Church has taken over The Star of Hope Child Refuge at Burlington. The institution has been supported through endowments and personal activities of local area persons, and W. H. Barger, Keyser, has been manager of the institution for the past 20 years.

At a meeting yesterday afternoon at the home, Barger relinquished his duties and turned the home over to conference officials.

Direct operation will be under the supervision of the Board of Hospitals and Homes of the Conference. Barger was asked to continue operation until the board can work out its plans. There will be no change in personnel at the home.

Children of all faiths will be admitted to the home as wards. There are now 20 children at the Orphanage.

Thelate Dr. F. L. Baker, Burlington, was the first manager, taking over that post when the orphanage was founded November 13, 1913, through a bequest of $15,000 by the late G. A. Hanlin.

Dr. Baker continued at his post until about 20 years ago when Barger took over the duties. The fund for the orphanage was increased to about $35,000 through contributions and bequests of persons of this area. The property includes 18 acres of land.

I'm Serious!

Maybe you like smiling babies? Sorry to disappoint you, but I've got a lot on my mind.

There's something wrong in America . . . and I'm the chap who is getting hurt!

Our Constitution says that no one can be denied the right to worship God. I'm an American! According to the Constitution I have the right to learn about God, to hear the Bible Stories, to be taught the Christian Way of Life.

But here's the hitch. While the Government can't deny me the right to attend Church School and Church—MY PARENTS CAN. They can rob me of my most sacred right just by neglecting my spiritual needs.

Did you know that about half the children in America are growing up without religious training? And yet there's a church in every village!

Yessir, I'm serious! Instead of talking about juvenile delinquency, we ought to do something about it. We ought to crowd our churches with children . . . and parents! And we ought to start Sunday!

THE CHURCH FOR ALL . . . ALL FOR THE CHURCH

The Church is the greatest factor on earth for the building of character and good citizenship. It is a storehouse of spiritual values. Without a strong Church, neither democracy nor civilization can survive. There are four sound reasons why every person should attend services regularly and support the Church. They are: (1) For his own sake. (2) For his children's sake. (3) For the sake of his community and nation. (4) For the sake of the Church itself, which needs his moral and material support. Plan to go to church regularly and read your Bible daily.

GRIN AND BEAR IT

By Lichty

"Bigger on the inside, smaller on the outside" . . . the auto industry has done it . . . why must the girdle industry lag behind such engineering?"

BARCLAY ON BRIDGE

By Shepard Barclay

"The Authority on Authorities"

USELESS IN NO TRUMPS

ONE TYPE of throw-in play that shows itself frequently is useful only in the play for a suit contract. It is that in which the throw-in opponent must lead to a tenace or return some suit which is blank in both the declarer's hand and the dummy, each containing one or more trumps. The return therefore enables the declarer to use a single trump from one hand while discarding a loser from the other.

♠ A J 9

♣ 10 6 4 3

♥ Q J 7 6
♦ 8 7 2

♠ 10 4 3
♥ A J 9
♦ A K Q 8 2
♣ (Dealer: West, North-South vulnerable.)

West North East South
Pass Pass Pass 1 ♣
1 ♥ 2 ♠ 2 ♥ 3 ♣
Pass 4 ♣ Pass 5 ♣

At first glance that appears to be a pretty tough contract. Apparently the declarer must lose two tricks in spades and one in hearts. But he avoided one of the two spade losers by building a neat end play.

West led the first trick with the heart K and South ruffed the A. After figuring out his plan to remove all red cards from his two holdings, then put East into the lead, he first cleared trumps with the A and J. He ruffed dummy's last heart, scored three diamond rounds and then sent the spade 10 through to East, who won it with the Q.

Poor East was now helpless. He had nothing left but spades and hearts. If he returned a spade it would be from the guarded K into the A-J. But a heart lead was equally bad, since South could ruff it in one of his holdings while discarding a losing spade from the other. So he threw in his cards and conceded the game.

Note that this kind of finish would not work against a No Trump contract. If East was in the lead with that same situation, he could merely score his heart Q, which nobody knows how to ruff in a No Trump contract.

Your Weekend Question

What is the most important single case of pure guessing in the largest percentage of bridge hands?

SECRETS OF CHARM

by JOHN ROBERT POWERS

"Map out a Fall improvement campaign," advises famous Powers Girl Ginny Radigan. "I've got mine ready now!"

WHAT are you going to get out of this Fall season? When it ends, are you going to be closer to what spells success to you? Are you going to be a more attractive person . . . have a more attractive personality? Are you going to get the biggest possible personal returns from this season?

There's only one way! You can't leave it to chance! You'll have to sit down now and map out a campaign. And only you can determine what your personal campaign should be.

But there's one thing sure: Any campaign must start with personal quizzing to determine what departments of your charm need a bit of overhauling and refurbishing. To give you a couple of helpful hints about making up such a private interrogation, take a look at the one just below. It belongs to Ginny Radigan, who is not only a famous fashion model but also mother of a twelve year old daughter! She has listed the points she thinks worth considering as a good basis for a successful season of work and good fun.

"Take a sheet of paper," says Ginny, "and divide it in half. The top is for a work quiz and the bottom for a fun quiz. Leave room for at least five questions on each, their answers, and space to write down your resolutions. There's no point in quizzing yourself if you aren't going to do something about the conclusions you draw!"

"I'll show you my questions and answers. My resolutions are just as personal as yours are going to be, so I'll keep them to myself!"

Work Quiz

1. Am I as dependable as loyalty to my organization demands? 2. Do I need to increase my efficiency at my work? 3. What has my punctuality got to do with my rating? 4. If I take the initiative in a project will I appear an "eager beaver"? 5. Is there ever a time to withdraw my cooperation from my colleagues?

WIFE PRESERVERS

A cooked cake frosting should be put on when the cake is cold. Uncooked frostings, except when made with boiling water, should be spread when the cake is warm.

DAILY CRYPTOQUOTE—Here's how to work it:

AXYDLBAAXR
is LONGFELLOW

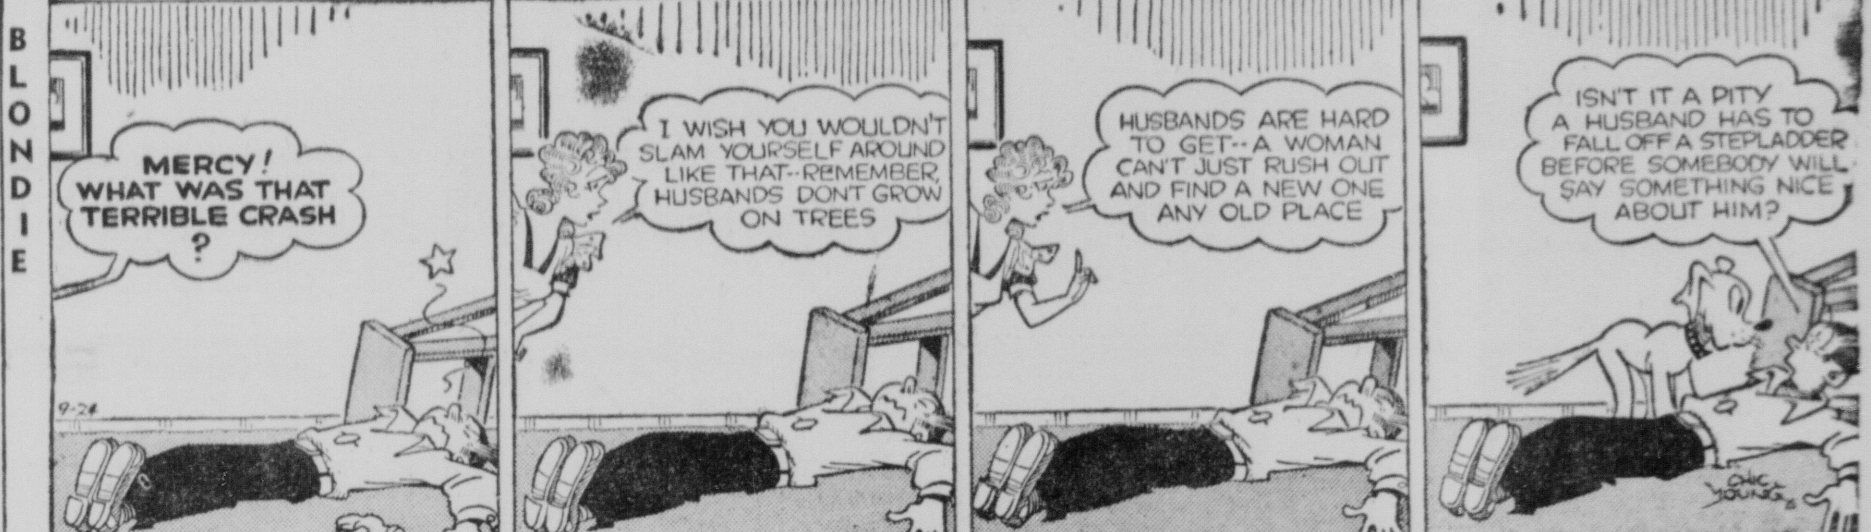

One letter simply stands for another. In this example A is used for the three L's, X for the two O's, etc. Single letters, apostrophes, the length and formation of the words are all hints. Each day the code letters are different.

Relatives Give Identity of W. Va. Skeleton

Two second cousins have identified the body of a skeleton found Sunday on Spruce Mountain, Pendleton County, W. Va., Trooper Richard E. West of the Franklin detachment of West Virginia State Police, announced yesterday.

Through his clothing and his glasses, Mr. and Mrs. John Shinaberry, Highstown, Va., identified the dead man as Emmett Billworth, about 70, a native of Gilmer County, W. Va.

They said that Billworth left their New Jersey home, where he had been staying early in March to go to the Franklin and the Pendleton County area.

Mr. and Mrs. Shinaberry told police that their cousin was well-educated and roamed from place to place in West Virginia. They had driven to Franklin to see the account of finding the skeleton in the newspapers.

The headless skeleton was found beside a tributary on Seneca Creek on the highest mountain in West Virginia by Cletus Bennett and his two sons, of that section, who were searching for ginseng.

Letcher Spionage, of Hunting Ground Mountain, near Cherry Grove, reported to State Police Wednesday that Billworth stopped at his home for a night's lodging.

Housing Survey Begun In City

A three-member committee to make a survey required by the Public Housing Authority before obtaining a low cost government housing project here has been appointed according to City Attorney Thomas B. Finan.

Committee members are Walter E. Kline, sanitary inspector for the City Health Department; Lt. Edward Jenkins, Fire Department inspector, and Ralph L. Rizer, city engineer.

Finan said that at a meeting this week he outlined to the group incidents connected with the forms which are made out in preparation of an application for urban, low rent public housing and a preliminary loan.

The forms ask for such information as the number of permanent house units which the local rental authority does not desire to acquire for low rent use, number of temporary war and veterans reuse family housing construction under state and local programs, and the number of dwellings termed unfit for housing, occupied either by white or negro families.

Kline reported that after the first day of inspection Thursday, he, Jenkins and J. Byron Dowling, state sanitarian, found 137 homes that should be torn down or repaired.

He stated his group covered Frederick Hill, Wineow, Centre and Mechanic Streets and parts of South Hill.

After recommendations are returned to Finan, Kline said, a meeting with Public Housing Authority officials will be followed by a review of the survey by a commission to be appointed by the Mayor and Council.

Troop 7 Holds Roll Call Event
Boy Scout Troop No. 7, sponsored by the Cumberland Rotary Club, held its annual Roll Call and Parents' Night program Thursday at the Scout House, Central Avenue.

James Welres, senior patrol leader, opened the meeting and the address of welcome was given by William Barger, scoutmaster. Eugene Kenney presented the librarian's report. Campfire stunts and games were in charge of Charles Shreeve.

The inspection and roll call was conducted by Stanley T. Daniels, neighborhood commissioner, and Vernon Adams, scout commissioner.

Railway Issues Haul Stock Market To Higher Average

NEW YORK, Sept. 23 (AP)—Railway issues hauled the stock market higher again today.

Turnover picked up and volume for the tenth day in a row topped the 1,000,000-share mark. Sales of 1,290,000 shares compared with 1,280,000 Thursday.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks advanced 2 of one point to 65.5. The rail group was strongest, with industrials and utilities tied for second place.

A total of 1,030 individual issues changed hands, of which 470 advanced and 288 declined.

New highs for the year were scored by 53 issues while only one touched bottom.

Most of the day's trading centered in the utility section. Commonwealth and Southern, most active stock, hit a new high for the year with a rise of 1/4 to 5%.

United Gas Corporation, second most active share, added 1/4 at 18, and Consolidated Edison, third on the active list, gained 1/4 at 27 1/2.

Commonwealth Edison established a new top for 1949, helped along by a small boost in the quarterly dividend rate, with an advance of 3/4 to 28 1/2.

Also up were Santa Fe at 95, Nickel Plate, 77, Canadian Pacific, 14 1/4, Illinois Central 28 3/8, Southern Pacific 41 3/8, Western Union 16 1/4, Consolidated Natural Gas 41 1/4, North American Co. 19 1/4, U. S. Steel 23 1/2, Youngstown Sheet and Tube 65 1/2, Standard Oil (NJ) 70, Seaboard Oil (up 3/4) 54 1/2, General Motors 62, and International Paper 58 1/4.

The corporate bond market lost its punch in the final trading hours and prices slipped a little lower. Trading volume dropped to $2,460,000 from $3,130,000 yesterday.

Kitzmiller Flood Survey Gets Underway

Army Engineers Will Make Detailed Report To Congressman Beall

Disastrous floods of 1924 and 1936 which swept away many homes, washed out streets and roads and took the lives of half a dozen people, were recalled yesterday at Kitzmiller, Garrett County when engineers representing the United States Army Engineering Corps surveyed flood control needs of the community.

Through the efforts of Rep. J. Glenn Beall, congressman from the Sixth Maryland District, Donald V. Birrell, chief of the flood control branch of the Army Engineers, and his assistant, Frank P. Shore, accompanied by Cumberland newspapermen, made a study of the flood wall and other conditions along the Potomac River which separates Blaine, W. Va., from Kitzmiller, Md., about 40 miles west of Cumberland.

The engineers found that over 1,200 feet of stone and concrete flood wall should be rebuilt or raised, and some dredging and removal of "islands" might be necessary to assure the townspeople against future property loss from high water.

Made Complete Study
Accompanied by town officials, the engineers and Rep. Beall started at the upper section of the town, above the public school building, and checked the wall all the way along the river to the bridge which crosses into West Virginia.

Just below the point where they started taking pictures and measurements is the entrance of an old Mill Race which flows through the heart of the town and empties back into the river a few hundred feet below the bridge. The old mill is gone, but the race is still used for some sewage and surface water run-off, and the fire department uses it as a supply source in event of bad fires. Otherwise, engineers said it should be closed off entirely.

However, they suggested that flood control gates be put on the head of the race, to keep out the river water at high water stage.

Last July, according to town officials, water was over the wall in several places and within four inches of the top elsewhere.

Accompanied By Councilmen
Town councilmen Carl Mosser and Thomas Baucum, along with Constable Wilbur Burrell, accompanied the engineers and Beall. Mayor Glenn Barton also conferred with them during the morning.

Mayor Barton, who is ticket and freight agent at the Western Maryland Railway station in Blaine, told the engineers they had contacted a reliable contracting firm and one of their representatives estimated that the necessary work could be done for around $30,000.

Councilman Mosser, a coal mine foreman, said the council is interested in getting a project underway because there are a good many men unemployed right now due to the coal mine shut-down, and some project is needed to help the men and their families through the slack periods regularly experienced in all mining communities.

Councilman Baucum, who is principal of the Kitzmiller school, said the problem has been considered quite seriously by many of the townspeople, but the cost is almost prohibitive to a small community, without outside financial help from the state or federal government.

Will Prepare Estimates
Birrell said the work of rebuilding damaged levees or flood walls comes within the scope of operation of the Army Engineers. However, it is always difficult to get projects definitely earmarked and underway, especially when Congress is economy minded, as it is now.

He explained, however, that he and his assistant would have their staff engineers prepare an estimate of what should be done, and prepare a report which will be submitted to Beall.

Congressman Beall asked that the plans be prepared on a step by step basis, so that if federal money is not immediately forthcoming, the town could undertake some phases of the project progressively, doing a small amount at a time.

Beall assured the town officials that he will do everything he can to attempt to get federal aid on the project.

Beall To Return

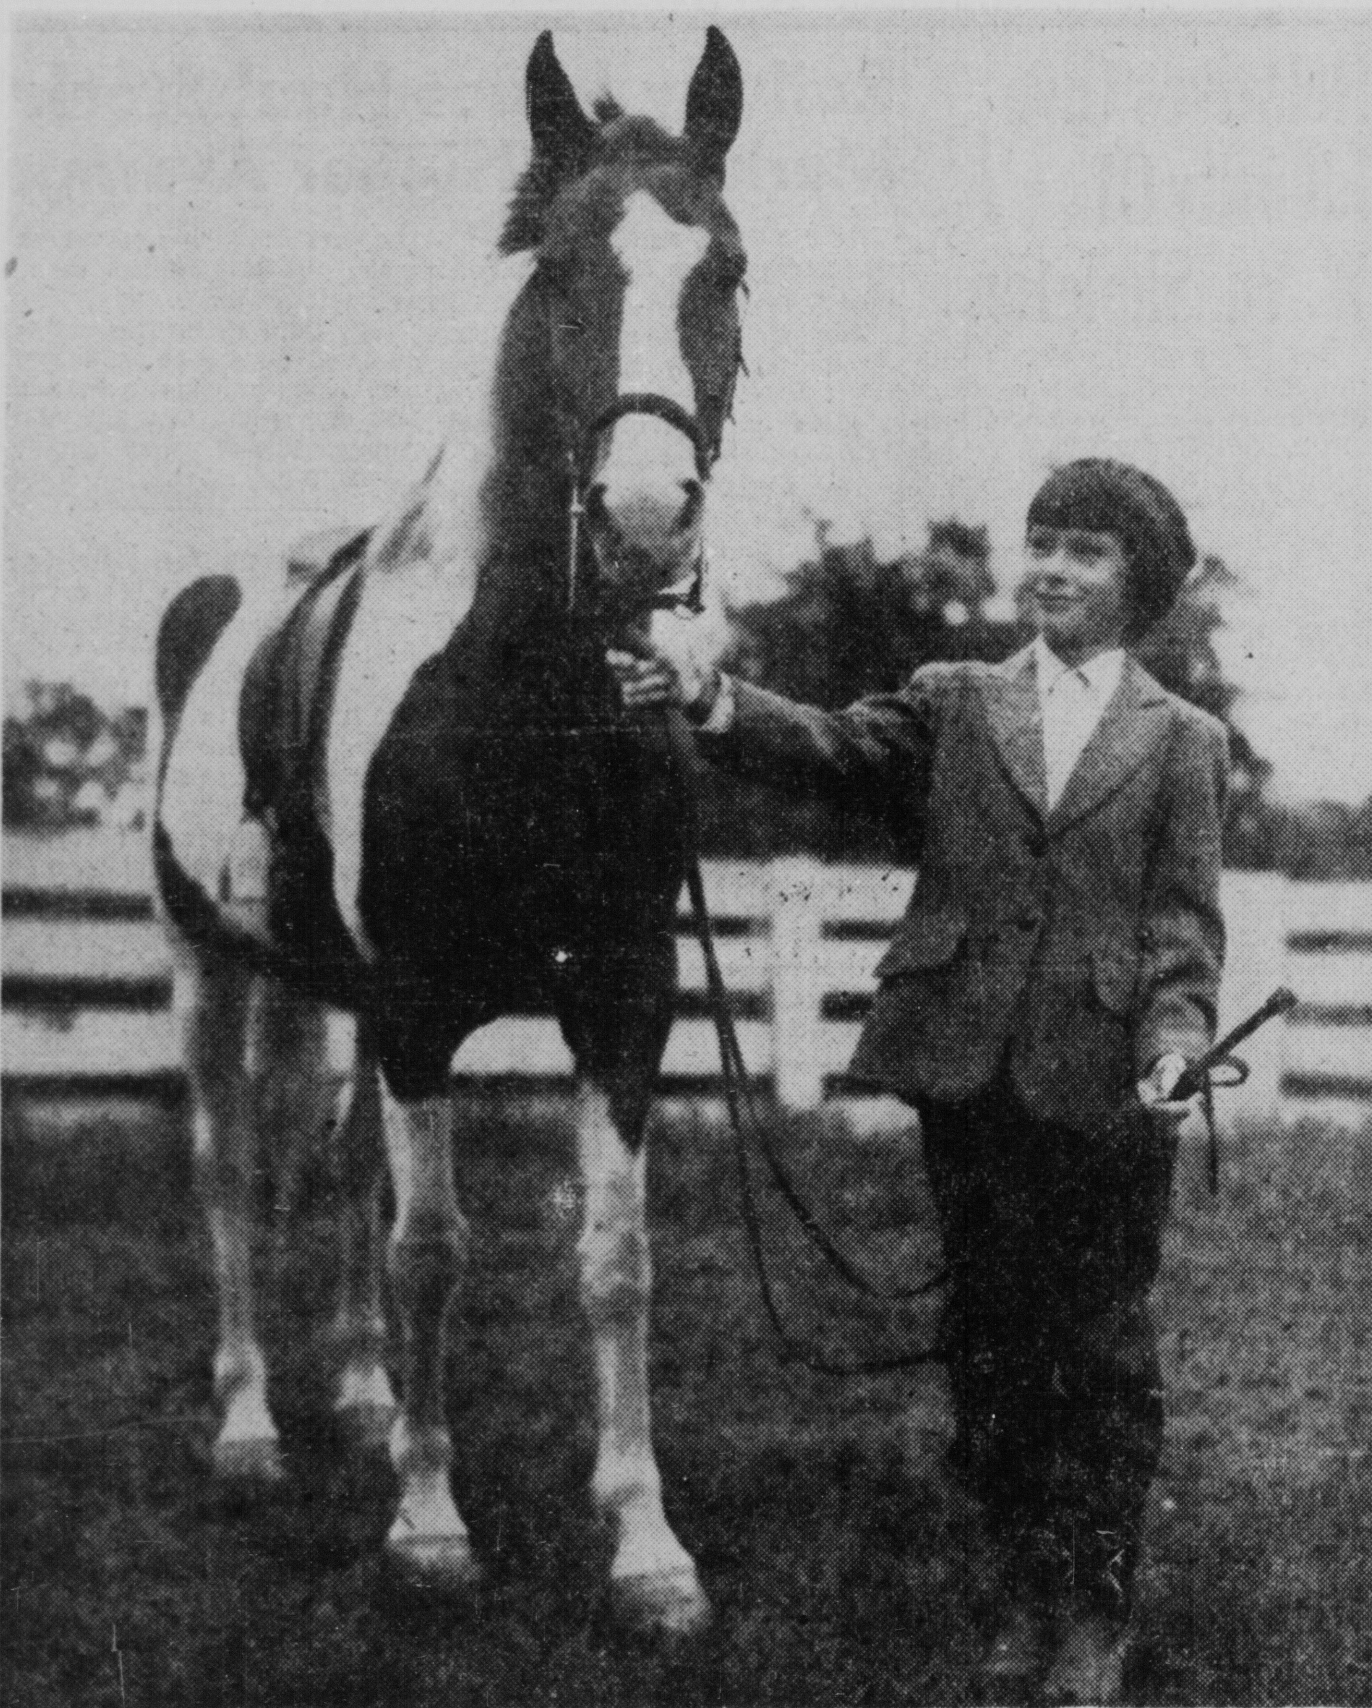

Residents of the community, through their officials, will be kept informed, he promised, of whatever progress is made and as soon as there are any developments, he offered to return to Kitzmiller personally and meet with the council or any group of interested citizens they might suggest.

Engineer Shore said there are several places where the wall is very definitely inadequate and a number of spots where dredging would help. Some of the work, originally done under WPA and other public works projects, has deteriorated badly, and the wall has become undermined or covered by silt, gravel and debris in many spots.

Engineer Birrell said 30 to 60 days time will be required to draw up preliminary project plans, but soon after that something definite may be known. Other than the preparation now, he said he could make no promises, but both he and Shore agreed that the community has a flood control problem and safeguards along the river front should be made.

Rep. Beall, Allegheny County officials and Birrell and Shore made a survey of the George's Creek water shed Thursday, with the idea of working out a project to prevent

Arabian Horse Entered In Show

Linda Jenkins, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William S. Jenkins, Frostburg, is shown with her half-bred Arabian saddle horse "Major." Linda will show "Major" in several classes at the Cumberland Horse Show, which will be held today and tomorrow at the Fair Grounds. Linda will ride the hunter "Kittanning," owned by her aunt, Miss E. Wilton Jenkins, in the children's equitation class.

Television Relay Station May Be Provided Here

Chamber To Explore Plans For Project

The possibilities of the establishment of a television relay station in Cumberland will be explored at a meeting planned Monday at 3:30 p. m. at the Cumberland Chamber of Commerce office.

In a letter to members of the Chamber yesterday, Harold W. Smith, manager, pointed out that many of the Chamber's members are interested in the project.

They feel, he said, that the facility can be provided for the residents of Cumberland without too much cost and have asked the Chamber to sponsor the project.

He added the Chamber would be glad to do so if there is sufficient interest.

All members who are interested in the subject are asked to attend the meeting to discuss the subject in detail.

The tentative plan proposed is to construct a relay station on one of the mountains surrounding this city to pick up and amplify several of the channels which would be available.

Smith said the meeting will be strictly "exploratory" to determine the amount of actual interest and to get some idea of the possibilities of financing the work.

Three To Attend State AAUW Meeting

Three members of the local branch of the American Association of University Women will attend a semi-annual state meeting in Washington today.

They are Mrs. Gilbert Miller, president of the Cumberland branch; Miss Margaret Baker, this city, state social studies chairman, and Mrs. J. H. Kruon, Frostburg, state financial chairman.

The conference will open at 10 a. m. today at the Dodge Hotel. Judge Lucy Howarth, Washington, a member of the AAUW national committee, will be luncheon speaker.

The conference was called to plan the state program. Most of the meeting will be devoted to routine discussion. The local delegates will return tonight.

4-H Clubs In County Will Study Soil Conservation At Meetings

October has been designated "Soil Conservation Month" for county 4-H Boys Clubs, David Crocker, unit conservationist for the Allegheny County Soil Conservation Service, announced yesterday.

In co-operation with Joseph M. Steger, assistant county home demonstration agent, Conservation Service personnel will show two movies and give a short talk to clubs in the area.

The movies will be "Realm of the Wild," pictures of animals in their natural habitats taken in National Parks, and "Hay Is What You Make It," instructions in the proper working and handling of grass and legume crops. A talk on "Grass and Farming" will follow.

Crocker, E. Stuart Delbrook and Martin Gordon, Conservation Aides, will alternate in giving the talks.

TWUA Urges X-Rays During Mass Survey

Local 1874, Textile Workers Union of America, CIO, is urging that all members and their families take advantage of the free chest X-rays available here September 27-October 8, Edward Brookman, chairman of the local's Child Welfare Committee, announced yesterday.

Notices have been posted by the committee listing the schedule of the mobile X-ray units which will visit Allegheny County under the auspices of the Allegheny County Health Association and the Allegheny County Tuberculosis Association.

Dr. Winter R. Prantz, county health officer, said about 6,000 persons took advantage of the survey last year and that even greater participation is expected from the 1949 survey.

Flynn To Attend FBI School

Chief of Police R. Emmett Flynn will leave here Sunday to attend a week of retraining classes at the Federal Bureau of Investigation National Academy, of which he is a graduate.

According to information that Chief Flynn received, the classes will be conducted Monday through Friday with outstanding persons in the various fields of law enforcement work speaking at many of the classes.

Flynn said Hugh Clegg, assistant director of the FBI will conduct one of the classes and Clifford E. Peterson, of the California State Highway Patrol will speak during a traffic course.

Flynn was graduate from the National Academy in 1945 while serving in the detective bureau of the Cumberland Police Department as a lieutenant.

Assistant Chief of Police B. Frank Gaffney will be in command of the local department during Flynn's absence.

Rev. Moore To Preach Here

Rev. Charles E. Moore, pastor of James Methodist Church, Keyser, W. Va., will preach at McKendree Methodist Church, 229 North Centre Street, Thursday night at 8 o'clock.

The senior choir and the James Church choir will sing. After the service the Willing Workers Circle will serve refreshments.

Local Tall Cedars To Be Instituted At State Armory

Ceremony Planned For October 29

Final plans for the institution of Algonquin Forest No. 140, Tall Cedars of Lebanon, were made at a meeting last night in the Queen City Hotel.

Supreme Forest officers will preside at the institution October 29, in State Armory, according to John H. McPaul, Jr., past grand tall cedar of Baltimore Forest No. 45 and junior deputy supreme tall cedar, who was present last night for the final arrangements.

The Supreme officers are Arthur E. Farmer, Trenton, N. J., supreme tall cedar; William F. Schmidt, Staten Island, N. Y., senior deputy tall cedar; McPaul, junior deputy tall cedar; Edmund H. Reeves, Camden, N. J., supreme scribe; John H. Kline, Easton, Pa., supreme treasurer, and Rev. Clyde Lynch, president of Lebanon Valley College, Pa., supreme chaplain.

Rev. Lynch will present the new forest with a white altar Bible at the time of its institution.

Before the evening's program a parade will form at the Armory in which several uniformed units from area forests will march.

Among those participating will be the band, Rangers (drill team), color guard and Skin Busters (mock initiation team) from Hagerstown Forest No. 95; band, Rangers and color guard from Capitol Forest No. 104, Washington, D. C.; Chanters (glee club) from Al-O-Mon Forest, McKeesport, Pa., and color guards from West Moreland Forest No. 77, Derry, Pa.

A large number of representatives are expected from all of the forests in the Eastern and Southeastern states, McPaul said.

The ceremonial, prologue and royal court degrees, the serious ritual of the Tall Cedars, and the Sidonian degree, the "fun" ritual, will be exemplified by Hagerstown in the ceremonies inside the Armory.

McPaul announced that refreshments would be served following the meeting.

Following last night's meeting, technical films of the district ceremonial in Hagerstown last year were shown.

Approximately 160 members are on the charter of Algonquin Forest at the time, McPaul said, but it is expected to have 200 by the time of institution.

Master Masons interested in joining may contact George Sheldon Brown, 229 Glenn Street, grand tall cedar of Algonquin Forest, or John B. Koontz, 519 Shriver Avenue, Scribe.

The local Tall Cedars forest has been organized in the last few months chiefly through the efforts of McPaul, Leslie Speilman, past grand tall cedar, Hagerstown Forest; C. Morris Delauder, past grand tall cedar, Hagerstown Forest; Thomas C. Havell, past grand tall cedar, Capitol Forest, and chairman, Supreme Forest Extension Committee, and William D. Senger, past grand tall cedar of Baltimore Forest and supreme forest district representative of District 14 to which Algonquin Forest will belong.

For next week they are planned as follows: Monday, Troop 13, First Presbyterian Church, and Troop 6, SS. Peter and Paul Catholic Church; Wednesday, Troop 4, Centre Street Methodist Church; Thursday, Troop 14, St. Patrick's Catholic Church, and Monday, October 3, Troop 1, St. Luke's Lutheran Church.

Stork Arrivals

Memorial hospital announced the following births yesterday: Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Watkins, 829 Braddock Road, a son.

86 Animals Entered In Horse Show

Post Time Is 1 P. M. Today

The list of entries for the Cumberland Horse Show, to be held today and tomorrow at the Fair Grounds, had reached 86 last night, according to William R. Carscaden, president of the Lions Club, sponsors of the event.

Carscaden said several other horses have arrived but have not yet been officially entered. At least 125 entries are expected by post time at 1 p. m. (EDT) today, Carscaden declared.

Some of the horses, he said, are valued as high as $20,000.

Since many of the horses are entered in more than one of the 32 classes, there will be more than 200 entries in the show. Trophies will be presented to the winners by Miss Jean Dixon, Miss Maryland of 1947, Forest Ward, Charlottesville, Va., judge for the show, arrived yesterday and said the fair grounds provide "one of the most beautiful settings for a horse show" in which he has been judge.

James C. Bane, announcer, and Charles H. Scott, ringmaster, both of Washington, Pa., will arrive at 10 a. m. and the show will get underway promptly at 1 p. m., Carscaden said.

Buses to the show will leave Baltimore Street every 15 minutes starting at 12:30 today and tomorrow, and will return to the city after the show. Buses will be marked "Fair Grounds."

Post time tomorrow will be 1 p. m. Standard Time, due to the change-over to slow time at 2 a. m. tomorrow.

Although a capacity crowd is expected, Carscaden said tickets can still be obtained by calling headquarters for the show at the fair grounds, telephone 5735. Many choice seats are still available, he said.

Officers of the American Horse Show Association, which has licensed the show, are expected to attend. Points and awards earned at the local show by exhibitors will count towards eligibility for the national show at Madison Square Garden, the nation's largest horse show.

The roadsters, hunters and jumpers classes are filled to capacity and Carscaden said competition will be "very keen."

Net proceeds of the show, including those from operation of the concession, will be used for the benefit of underprivileged blind children in Allegheny County.

Carscaden said 17 of the entries showed "excellent" form at yesterday's workouts. They are:

"Happy Boy," owned and ridden by Rev. George Wehler, Frostburg; "Man," owned and ridden by Susie Schriver, Cumberland; "Major D," owned and ridden by Linda Jenkins, Frostburg; "New Penny," owned and ridden by Carolyn Settles, Hagerstown; "My Sally Peavine," "Gallant Sport," "Ritz Miss," and "Robert Taylor," all owned by R. R. King, Bridgeville, Pa.; "Diana," owned and ridden by Ann Schellhaus, Cumberland; "Victory Glory" and "Spirit of Gold," both owned and ridden by Raymond Purinton, Cumberland; "Peavine's Golden Charm," owned by Mr. and Mrs. Doy Jack, Buckhannon, W. Va.; "My Red Boy," owned and ridden by Jimmy Crews, Buckhannon, W. Va.; "Redstone" and "Tyson," both owned by William S. Jenkins, Frostburg; "Kittanning," owned and ridden by Miss E. Wilton Jenkins, Frostburg, and "Wilson's Merry Lad," owned and ridden by Miss Marilyn Heiskell, Frostburg.

Timber Lands To Be Inspected

Two officials of the Forestry Division of the U. S. Soil Conservation Service will inspect woodland areas planted by Soil Conservation District co-operators in Allegheny and Garrett Counties Thursday and Friday.

David Crocker, unit conservationist for this county, said the men are Arthur J. McIntyre, chief of the Forestry Division of the Regional Office, Upper Darby, Pa., and a Mr. Manifold from the Washington, D. C., headquarters of the Forestry Division.

They will inspect plantings in this area for survival, rate of growth and condition of the stand.

Old timber stands also will be viewed for good forestry management practices.

During their stay in this county Thursday, Crocker has arranged for the men to tour farms owned by Clarence Miller, near Midland; E. L. Kolb, near Flintstone; C. E. Workman, near Shaft; Alva Pennell, Elvitt's Creek, and C. W. McCulley, Union Grove.

Timber stands on the Albert Slider farm, Town Creek, and R. W. Ferguson, this county, also will be observed.

Scout Roll Call Meetings Set

A schedule for Roll Call and inspection meetings for Boy Scout troops of Cumberland District has been announced by Willis V. Smith, Potomac Council executive.

For next week they are planned as follows:

Monday, Troop 13, First Presbyterian Church, and Troop 6, SS. Peter and Paul Catholic Church; Wednesday, Troop 4, Centre Street Methodist Church; Thursday, Troop 14, St. Patrick's Catholic Church, and Monday, October 3, Troop 1, St. Luke's Lutheran Church.

Arrival Of Autumn Heralds Return To Standard Time

The first day of autumn, which appeared on the calendar yesterday, was a typical fall day, and those who didn't know summer had come to an end were reminded by lowering temperatures, a brisk breeze, scudding clouds and falling leaves.

The woodlands are turning slowly into a bevy of color as the warm days of summer fade into the past. Birds can be seen forming into flocks readying themselves for their trek southward.

A rainbow across the city last evening seemed to herald the arrival of the colorful autumn season, but even so, many folks just won't believe fall is here until after they turn their clocks back Sunday night.

At 2 o'clock Sunday morning Daylight Saving Time comes to an official end and clocks will be turned back an hour to where they belong normally. This will provide an extra hour of sleep for some, and will put everyone back on the same time.

The Lions Club-sponsored Horse Show at Fairgo today will begin at 1 p. m. Daylight Time, and tomorrow at 1 p. m. Standard Time. The horses may enjoy that extra hour of rest, too.

Weather for today and the weekend is predicted as cool and fair. Late last night, the weatherman was talking loudly about a heavy frost this morning, and the appearance of smoke from many chimneys, and top coats along the streets, seemed to indicate he knew whereof he spoke.

All in all, autumn is here and winter is just around the corner. Fact is, there are only 82 shopping days until Christmas.

Rawlings Youths Win First Prize At Fair

Two Rawlings youths have won first place in the vegetable and marketing demonstration at the state fair at Timonium, Assistant County Agent Joseph M. Steger announced last night.

The boys, Clyde Warnick, 17, and Edward Orndorff, 15, won a $20 prize for their demonstration on harvesting and storing onions.

Warnick and Orndorff will represent Maryland in the national contest of the National Junior Vegetable Growers' Association in Washington in January.

Dentists' Session Set Next Week

At least 15 Allegheny county dentists and possibly more are expected to attend the 26th semi-annual meeting of the Maryland State Dental Association in Hagerstown next Monday and Tuesday.

Business sessions during the two-day gathering will be at the Hotel Alexander, where a pre-convention reception will be held for delegates Sunday.

Dr. V. B. McLaughlin, president of the Washington County Dental Society, will address the initial meeting Monday and Dr. LeRoy Ennis of the University of Pennsylvania will speak on "X-ray Interpretation of Interest to the General Practitioner."

A board of governors meeting and a business session will be held in the afternoon and dinner and dance will be given at night. A bridge luncheon is scheduled as part of the social activities on Tuesday.

Attend Virginia Church Conference

Rev. Lee E. Sheaffer and D. I. DeWitt are representing Potomac Park and Ridgeley Evangelical United Brethren churches at the 150th annual session of the Virginia Conference of the church at Roanoke, Va.

The conference, which opened Thursday, will end tomorrow morning with a sermon by Bishop J. B. Showers, of the East District.

Meanwhile, Rev. Sheaffer reported that both local churches showed increases in membership over last year's figures. Ridgeley had a 10 per cent increase, with a total of 46 members. Last year there were 41.

The Potomac Park church showed a 47 per cent increase, with a membership of 107, as compared with 71 last year. Sunday school enrollment at the two churches totaled 256.

The two churches spent a total of $9,993.64 during the year.

Permit For Parking Lot Is Granted

A permit for a centrally located parking lot at Nos. 18-20 North Centre Street was issued yesterday to Henry Bore, Lonaconing by City Engineer Ralph E. Rizer.

Application for the permit identified the owner of the lots as Mrs. Homer Wilson, 105 Washington Street. Both locations were formerly occupied by buildings demolished in the 1941 explosion.

John R. Baker, 45 Virginia Avenue was granted a permit to erect a one and a half story brick and frame house at 3 Kent Avenue. He estimated cost at $5,000.

Jaycees Announce Plans For Third "I Speak For Democracy" Contest

Plans for the third annual "I Speak For Democracy" contest were announced yesterday by the Cumberland Junior Association of Commerce, which is sponsoring the contest in co-operation with local radio stations.

The program is jointly sponsored on a nation-wide basis by the United States Junior Chamber of Commerce and the National Association of Broadcasters, according to J. Kenneth Morgan, chairman of the Jaycee "I Speak for Democracy" contest.

The purpose of the contest is to encourage young people to think about the democratic form of government and to express its philosophy in well spoken words, freely and in the public interest.

Last year's "I Speak for Democracy" contest was participated in by more than 250,000 high school students in the United States, Alaska and Hawaii.

To Get Scholarships

The four national winners will receive a $500 scholarship that will be accepted by any accredited college or university, a beautiful wrist watch and other personal prizes, plus an all-expense-paid trip to

Non-Union Mines In W. Va. Halt Operation

The nation's five-day old coal strike took a tighter grip on the Tri-State area yesterday as "numerous" non-union mines on the Allegheny Front in West Virginia closed from fear of "retaliation."

West Virginia State Police who have had brief encounters with bands of roving pickets for the past three days said operators in Mineral and Grant Counties closed down yesterday morning. "They were fearful of night-time retaliation," one state policeman declared.

In Allegany County, Maryland State Police were alerted after a Westernport operator informed them that pickets were reported heading for that area from Elk Garden, W. Va.

Headed For Westernport
According to the operator, who state police quoted, the pickets had "made it known" in Elk Garden that they were headed for Westernport. A few small deep mines are reportedly still operating there.

Maryland police also reported a brief gathering of miners at Ocean, in the George's Creek section. The gathering dispersed after about 10 minutes. No mines are known to be working there.

One miner said the gathering may have been in protest of coal trucks that have been moving over the road. Several were reported to have passed through Ocean on Thursday.

On the Allegheny Front section in West Virginia, police said a "considerable number of non-union miners have been working in between 10 and 20 mines. Some of the mines in Grant County did not open yesterday and the others shut down shortly after opening.

Troopers assigned to the area said pickets that appeared Thursday and began to dump a coal truck but were stopped, were back in the area yesterday. They left after the mines closed.

Threats Not Carried Out
One officer said operators and drivers reported they had been threatened by the pickets, but the threats were not substantiated. The pickets were warned not to interfere with traffic or operating mines, police said.

Throughout the Tri-State area, however, patrolling policemen said there was no violence or disturbance of any kind during the five days since the miners lay down their picks and shovels in protest over company failure to make welfare payments as called for in the expired contract, under which John L. Lewis had permitted a three-day work week.

One miner said last night that rumors of an attempt to bring coal in on the railroad to some local spots has been growing. "It will bring pickets into the picture fast," he declared.

4-H Boys Start Judging Practice

The first in a series of 4-H practice poultry judging demonstrations was given last night by Martin Gordon, Baltimore Pike, at the home of Gary Teter, Flintstone.

Assistant County Agent Joseph M. Steger said Gordon gave several county 4-H boys pointers on judging leghorns.

Another meeting is scheduled next Wednesday night at the home of David Ferguson, Union Grove, when members will study egg candling and judging of Rhode Island Reds.

Steger said a county team of three boys and one alternate will be selected about October 14 to represent the county in the State Poultry Judging Contest at College Park October 20.

Wade Rice, poultry specialist of the University of Maryland, will attend the October 14 meeting.

Steger said the winners of the state contest will represent Maryland in a regional contest for Northeastern states in Boston.

Vaughn Says Poison Killed State's Deer

BALTIMORE, Sept. 23 (P)—A state official said tonight that a poisonous substance probably can be blamed for the death of some 200 deer recently at the Army's Aberdeen (Md.) Proving Ground.

Ernest A. Vaughn, director of the Department of Game and Inland Fish, made the statement after receiving a report from the Patuxent Research Refuge of the Fish and Wildlife Service.

Similar studies are underway at the University of West Virginia at Morgantown. More than 100 deer were found dead in four counties of the Mountain State.

Weather

Autumn blew into Cumberland yesterday with the appropriate chilly breezes and gloowering skies. Fall came officially at 5:06 a. m. with a temperature of 53 degrees and 25 of an inch of rain. Yesterday as on only one other day of the year, day and night were equal. This phenomenon also occurs on the first day of spring in March. Yesterday's low was 48, the official high, 62, and at 9:36 p. m. the mercury had dipped to 51. Today is expected to be fair and cool, with possible scattered frost tonight. Highest temperature should be in the 60s.
